MTC not budging, Minden road men remain off the job

Road workers in Anson, Hindon and Minden remain off the job following council's decision to lay the men off last Friday. The municipality's road budget was $40,000 in the red last week, and the layoffs came as a result of council's decision not to transfer funds from other committees and projects to meet road maintenance costs.

Reeve Sinc Nesbitt said Monday night that council had met with representatives of the Ministry of Transportation and Communications earlier in the day but that the situation remained at an impasse. Nesbitt said the meeting with the MTC had been constructive, but that as yet there has been no indication that more money will be made available to the municipality to meet road payroll and maintenance expenses through to the end of the year.

The reeve said problems with the road budget go back "eight or ten years".

"For some reason, over the past ten years, the floor level of maintenance money has changed only about five percent (per year). The change doesn't overcome increases in salaries," Nesbitt said.

Complicating the problem, according to the reeve, is the long standing practice of using money granted for construction to meet maintenance costs.

"This means that your cost of maintenance goes up every year over and above the raises they give you for the very simple reason that you aren't reconstructing or putting any new hardtop on any roads so that you get away from maintenance."

Nesbitt said it would now take "all the money we have for maintenance and all the money we get for construction just to do the maintenance on the roads."

This year, $40,000 allotted for construction was used for the reconstruction of the Blairhampton Road. Council approved the reconstruction "knowing then that there was going to be no construction money to transfer to maintenance," the reeve said.

Council will meet again Wednesday night, but Nesbitt said he expected no new developments at that meeting.

A public meeting may be called in the near future to give ratepayers an opportunity to say whether or not they wish general tax revenue to be used for road maintenance for the rest of the year.

New stained-glass windows, which now adorn the rear wall of St. Peter's Anglican Church at Maple Lake, were dedicated to the memory of architect Napier Simpson junior Monday evening. Reverend David Barker and Reverend Alan Read, Anglican Bishop of the Diocese in Toronto, made the dedications. For more details, see the story on page 3.

'Should not be viewed as a bible' planner says

Council adopts strategy after months of revision

Without having seen a formal list of amendments, Haliburton County Council last Wednesday approved planning strategy documents that have been under preparation for more than a year and a half.

The documents set down planning policies and development objectives for the county's eight municipalities excluding Dysart et al. They were prepared by Totten, Sims, Hubicki Associates and were completed in draft form last year for presentation at a series of public meetings.

Since then the documents, consisting of a background planning study, municipal statements of planning policy, and a development strategy, have undergone revisions at a series of meetings between the planners, county council's planning committee, and officials of the Ministries of Housing and Natural Resources. At last Wednesday's meeting, council voted to formally approve the document as revised, on the strength of advice from its planning committee and a verbal presentation by planner John McDermott.

McDermott said changes made in the documents were "very, very minor". Some 12 modifications had been made by September 11, and McDermott said he expected a total of 16 changes will have been made by the time the documents receive formal Ministry of Housing approval, which could come as early as October 1.

The strategy was circulated to some 52 government agencies. Requests for modifications came from the Ministry of Housing and the Ministry of Natural Resources.

Major modifications centered around five matters addressed in the strategy, McDermott said.

Original plans called for the strategy to be reviewed and revised if necessary in five, ten or 15 year periods.

The Ministry of Housing has insisted on mandatory five year reviews. McDermott said the Ministry views the strategy as an "interim document" which will be updated when lakeshore capacity studies are completed by the Ministry of the Environment.

The "interim" status indicates that the Ministry may press for the adoption of an official plan by the county in the near future.

Forestry was an issue that drew intensive comments from the Ministry of Natural Resources, and a number of revisions were made in the documents to deal with Ministry concerns. Most of them involve "a change in wording rather than a change in concept," McDermott said.

"The document now zeroes in on forestry as a subcomponent" of resource industries such as mineral and aggregate extraction, McDermott told council. The strategy reflects a commitment on behalf of the county to do "all it can to help forestry."

On the question of rural estate development, the Ministry of Housing at first called for the deletion of that form of development, but subsequently decided "it should be left," McDermott

Syrup company expected to form

A company which could provide the basis for a central evaporator system for maple syrup in Haliburton County is expected to form soon.

John Hogg, a member of the Haliburton County Economic Development Commission, told the commission last Wednesday that he met with five people interested in the concept of a central evaporator system.

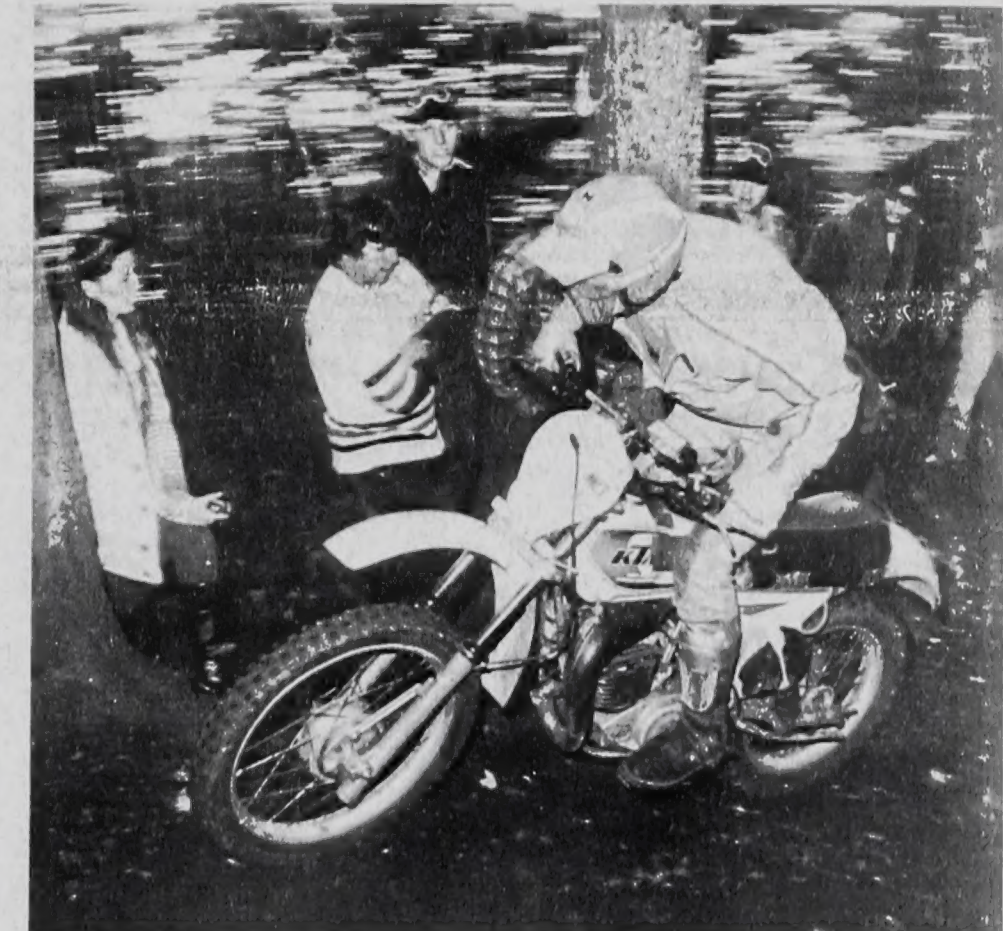

According to the minutes circulated from the meeting,

Hogg said the formation of a company for this purpose "is anticipated" as a result of the meeting. The group, he said, also considered leasing wood lots to expand the present base. Some 20,000 taps would be involved at start-up, with an eventual goal of 100,000.

Hogg said he also discussed the idea with a representative from the Federal Business and Development Bank, who gave an encouraging reaction.

Commissioner Glen Hodgson suggested contacting the Leslie Frost Centre to take advantage of their expertise. Dysart et al. Reeve Murray Fearney mentioned that Pat Waddell at Haliburton Wildlife should also be contacted and advised of the developments, since he may wish to become involved. The maple syrup group, said Hogg, has agreed to meet monthly.

The 26th annual Corduroy Enduro made its impression on Haliburton County last weekend as over 240 racers from all over the continent came to compete. For more pictures and story, see page 7.

Executive adamant, no agreement with the Huskies on juvenile players

Shouting match mars hockey meeting

by Joe Banks

The Minden Minor Hockey Association has a new executive following the resignation of four of its former members.

Former president Bob Wells, directors Kelvin Boyle, Neil Burk and Gary Warburton all resigned their posts before last Thursday's public meeting. Warburton, who coached the Minden pee wee team last year, says he does not plan to return as coach this year. "I'm finished," he said following a meeting that was marred by shouting matches and personal accusations.

The former members resigned for reasons they did not want publicized, but differences within the executive are known to have been a major factor in the resignations.

The meeting Thursday night was called, said a prepared statement by the executive, because "we feel our registration is down and we would like to let the public know where we stand." The statement went on to say that, "we do not need anyone else on the executive...If we all work together, with some volunteer help, we can surely make it work."

After the statement was read, the floor was open to comments with regards to the new executive. Warburton spoke first about his feelings on the recent agreement reached by the former executive and representatives of the Haliburton Huskies, the Dysart recreation committee and Haliburton Minor Hockey. The agreement called for the release of any juvenile-aged player from the Minden system good enough to play for the Huskies. In turn, those juvenile-aged players not selected, from anywhere in the county, will be encouraged to try out for the Minden juvenile team.

"We have nothing to gain by it (the agreement)," said Warburton. He stressed that "we have to support Minden Minor Hockey. It's not fair to take our players away." Warburton mentioned his resignation was final because "if we can't all work together, I don't want to be part of it."

Warburton referred to the article published in The Echo last week, which stated that two of the members resigned "over allowing an individual to coach in the system." He called the suggestion "entirely untrue." Former executive president Bob Wells was on hand at the meeting and stressed to Warburton that he never "condemned" his coaching abilities, and "want to make clear that I didn't plant that story." Wells added that the story was inaccurate, and that a retraction would appear in this week's Echo.

But the brunt of the arguments stemmed from the alleged agreement between the Haliburton and Minden hockey bodies. Wells and Neil Burk argued in favour of such an agreement, while juvenile coach Joe Cox and Ross Warburton argued against it. "We wouldn't be capable of having a Junior E team here," said Warburton, "if we lost our players to Haliburton." He added that an agreement was attempted some years back, but said the executive "couldn't work with" the Haliburton body.

Burk asked Warburton what he would suggest as a solution to the problem. "Unless they (the players) make Tier two 'A' hockey, they shouldn't be allowed to go," he answered.

"What benefit is there to that?" replied Burk.

Wells stressed that the agreement simply allowed the players "to go up and try out," and then consider the release if the Huskies wanted the player. Gary Warburton objected to the proposal since he didn't "think somebody should come in and try to brainwash the kid."

Burk asked the gathering how it could harm the players by simply trying out, and utilizing the ice which has been left in the Dysart arena.

Recreation committee cancels concert, decision on future to be made next year

In the wake of complaints from the Minden detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police, Minden's recreation committee decided last Thursday to cancel a rock concert scheduled for October 7. But the committee made no decision on the future of such concerts in the community, preferring to leave that choice in the hands of next year's committee.

The OPP have already served notice that they may seek a court injunction against the concerts if the future committee decides to go ahead with them.

At a special meeting called to discuss the concerts with OPP representatives, the committee heard details of the confrontation between rock fans and police earlier this month that resulted in extensive damage to a police cruiser and the laying of more than 30 liquor charges.

Corporal Ron Foran, speaking on behalf of detachment commander sergeant Arnold Besteman, and constable Gary Chapman, who was on duty on the night of the concert, called for an end to events for the good of the community as well as police.

Chapman told the committee that crowds began lining up for the concert at 5:30 p.m. and that the doors of the arena didn't open to admit the fans until 8:40 p.m.

"A lot of them were drinking, smoking (marijuana) and getting more boisterous," as the event progressed, Chapman said.

"When we arrived at 7:30, we were subjected to a lot of verbal abuse. From that point on, I would see empties (beer, wine and liquor bottles) flying out of the crowd. They weren't in an orderly lineup where you could pick anybody out," Chapman said.

The situation "kept getting worse and worse," Chapman said. He estimated that "between 15 and 20 bottles" struck the cruiser, damaging bodywork and shattering its rear window.

Chapman stressed that not all of those in the lineup "were wild". In fact, he said, many of the fans "were quite disturbed with what was going on."

He emphasized, however, that many of those waiting to get into the concert, "were impaired with something. A lot of them that I saw were just weaving like zombies."

Foran agreed with Chapman's version of the night's events, noting that all the officers on duty had presented the same information to detachment administrators.

"We don't feel that our men should have to put up with the abuses they took up there," Foran said. "We're concerned for their safety." "We feel it's time that something was done before there is a problem."

Foran said the situation both inside and outside the arena before and during a rock concert that attracts more than 1000 people, many of them from urban areas to the south, is volatile.

Residence helps retarded learn

It's not an institution but an experience in community living that brings results

Residents and counsellors sit down to supper

For the past year, a house on Mountain Street in Haliburton Village has quietly but boldly been providing a special group of people with an experience in community living. Though the community has remained largely unaware of the transformation, the former nurses residence opposite the Dysart Community Centre has become a home for mentally retarded adults. There have been problems over the past twelve months, confined mainly to convincing parents of retarded adults and the community at large that the residence is decidedly not an institution, but progress has been made. Today, the residence has a new director, new staff, and is about to increase its present complement of three adults to its full capacity of six. For the Haliburton County and District Association for the Mentally Retarded, and for the home's new director, that increase will signify both the culmination of months of work and the beginning of a long term project.

If there is a philosophy behind the residence, it centres around the fact that given a chance, and the right kind of guidance, many mentally handicapped people can take an active part in the life of a community, and can reach a level of have been given signing authority. No formal decision has been made on the car loan issue, but Dove said last June that the matter would be reviewed if the executive committee wanted a change.

Amm said the Society's financial report "doesn't look very damn good," but added that all is "not as bad as it looks." He said CAS employees have been overpaid on mileage allowances, and that those keeping children have occasionally also been overpaid, in some instances by as much as $100 or more.

A key problem with the present structure of the CAS is that there are many more directors than there are members of the executive committee, Amm said. The result is that the executive committee (made up of elected representatives from Haliburton, Victoria, and Peterborough Counties, as well as

Uranium mine jeopardized by extensive find in West

Unless Rare Earth Resources Ltd. begin their uranium mining operation in the south-east corner of the county soon, there may be little or no market for the ore they hope to process.

That was the opinion expressed by the Deputy Minister of Natural Resources, Dr. J. K. Reynolds during a meeting with members of the Haliburton County Economic Development Commission last week. According to secretary Bob Stinson, the commission met with Reynolds to air a number of concerns they had about resource use in the county, particularly with respect to the uranium mines located in Monmouth and Cardiff Townships.

Reynolds told the commission that a "major find" of uranium has appeared in western Canada, with the possibility of a five percent yield of ore. Stinson said Reynolds was concerned that the mining project here could lose much of its projected market because of the find, and that if mining did not start soon, the project could be held to a very short term.

"He said the mine could be viable for a few years," said Stinson, but the possibility of a long-term excavation is

Four businesses victimized by break and enter thieves

Haliburton Village was the scene of a rash of break-ins which saw four businesses entered in a span of three days during the Civic holiday weekend.

The post office in the village was entered between September 15 and 17. After gaining access to the unlocked lobby area, thieves removed doors which allowed entry into the post office itself. Approximately three dollars was stolen from a purse.

During the same two day period, the Haliburton laundromat, owned by Richard Biagi, was the target of a break-in when the workshop area was entered after the lock was slipped. A quantity of tools in a tool box, worth approximately $400, were stolen.

The Haliburton Hairdressing salon, owned by Marion Teatro, was entered through an unlocked door from the laundromat during the same period. Approximately $100 in cash, hair shears and scissors were stolen.

Bruce's Barber Shop was also entered through the laundromat sometime during the 17th or 18th of September. Approximately $150 worth of cigarettes were stolen.

The investigations, being carried out by provincial police constable Al Bibby, are continuing.

Planning strategy adopted

said. A change was sought and won in the strategy's outline of recreational retirement communities however. Lots developed in such areas now must have frontage on township roads.

The Ministry of Natural Resources sought clarification of wording in sections dealing with environmental restraint areas, McDermott said.

The Ministry of Transportation and Communication wanted the focus of development around the Minden by-pass to be commercial rather than residential, and the document now includes that stipulation.

A fifth change dealt with land division and the legality of municipalities entering into service agreements with developers.

The most significant change however, came in a section dealing with implementation of the document.

Original plans called for the completed strategy to be signed by all members of the provincial cabinet, a step which would have made the document binding on all the province's Ministries. Only the Minister of Housing will sign the strategy now, however, and it will merely be circulated to the other Ministries. The significance of this change was not made clear at last Wednesday's meeting, but indications are that other Ministries may not be bound to abide by the document's dictates.

McDermott told council that the provincial government was generally viewing the planning strategy as a major step toward an official plan. (Dysart, which is not included in the planning strategy, is the only municipality in the county which already has an official plan).

"The worst thing we can do is to take the document and read it as a bible for the next five years," McDermott said. "Issues (arising from the document) should be brought back to the planning committee for comment and change."

"If the planning strategy has one weakness," the planner said, "it is that it has a tendency to deal with only half the county."

"Perhaps in the future you can all come together on a consensus," and create an official plan, McDermott said.

Council satisfied with local police

Haliburton County Council is satisfied with the quality of police protection in the county, but at least one of its members holds a different point of view.

At a meeting last Wednesday, council endorsed resolutions from Lutterworth Reeve Ron Gambell and Deputy-Reeve Glynn Lewis registering support for the Metro Toronto police department and the Ontario Provincial Police. Merideth Amm, chairman of the Improvement District of Bicroft, declined to support the resolution respecting the OPP however, because he claimed it was next to impossible to get police to come to the Cardiff township in the early hours of the morning.

The resolutions noted that police have been experiencing public criticism recently and that such criticism is "wholly unjustified, unwarranted and detrimental to police departments in the performance of their duties."

Major Glynn Lewis spoke in favour of the resolutions, saying Canadians have "a false sense of security" and that "we've a tendency in Canada not to support the police".

He said the police "are running down in strength (due to limited funding) and I think that is a serious thing." Lewis told council he was familiar with the Northern Ireland situation as a result of his military service and claimed Canada "had the same potential for trouble" as that area.

"I've seen it grow from nothing to open subversion," he said, emphasizing that support for police was important if the growth of terrorism is to be held in check.

The Improvement District of Bicroft chairman reserved comment on the Metro Toronto Police department, but about the Ontario Provincial Police he was emphatic. Amm said Bicroft gets its police protection from the Apsley Opp detachment some 25 miles away while the Bancroft detachment is located only 13 miles away.

"If this is proper administration of our provincial police force, then I can never back a resolution like that."

Amm said police protection for the rest of the county "may be good, but if you phone Apsley at 4 a.m. you don't get an answer until 8 a.m." Even then, a cruiser does not arrive until "a day or two later".

"This has been our experience since the mine opened," Amm said. "I want to go on record as certainly being against the resolution."

Dysart et al Reeve Murray Fearrey said the problems in Bicroft were of an internal nature, and that "to cast that kind of doubt on the whole enforcement in Haliburton County is not fair."

Amm admitted that his council had not contacted the Apsley OPP to discuss concerns about police protection. He said he understood Peterborough OPP headquarters had been contacted by a previous council, but that he wasn't sure it had been done.

He said his council would look into the matter.

Monmouth Reeve Keith Tallman told Amm that if the Bicroft council managed "to get Apsley straightened out" they might consider concentrating on the Minden detachment "because we can't get a policeman until eight o'clock in the morning either."

The resolution will be forwarded to the Metro Toronto Police and to OPP headquarters in Toronto.

Recreation committee cancels concert

a spark and there could be chaos."

Committee chairman Norm Harrison said the events at the "Triumph" concert earlier this month were unexpected. "Up until this time we've had very few problems inside (the arena), very little damage. This was a surprise to us."

Committee member and councillor Stuart Brandon said he thought the events of the concert had been "blown way out of proportion". He noted that illegal drinking and drug offences "go on on main street all the time".

"We have to keep these things in perspective," Brandon said. He said a lot of people were "shocked" that such offences would occur around the arena when the events at the concert were publicized. As a result the problem as become "magnified" in ratepayers' minds.

Although the committee expressed concern about the problems at the rock concert, there was also a consensus that the group had an obligation to provide the community and summer visitors with entertainment.

"It's good for the kids," Foran said, "but it is good for the community?"

Committee chairman Harrison noted that the committee had signed a contract with a Toronto based promoter for one more concert October 7, and that it would have to decide whether or not to break that contract. As for the future of the concerts, Harrison said the recreation committee is appointed yearly, and that next year's committee would be faced with the decision about the future of such concerts in the community.

Foran countered that if another concert is held, the OPP will be obliged to provide outside crowd control, but that "in future, it might be necessary to seek an injunction to stop them."

A brief examination of the contract for the next concert revealed a loophole which the committee felt might provide an out. The contract called for the promoter to provide a certified cheque for $400 (the arena rental charge) upon the signing of the contract. Arena manager Brian Sisson assured the committee that no such cheque had been provided by the promoter when the contract was signed.

In a recorded vote, the committee voted unanimously in favour of attempting to break the contract and call off the final concert.

Committee member Stu Brandon was asked to contact the promoter, and the committee agreed to take the matter to the township's solicitor if necessary.

Parishoners remembered in dedication

St. Peter's Anglican Church in Maple Lake was the scene of a quiet and colourful ceremony in which pews, a pulpit, and a new stained-glass window were dedicated in the memory of past residents of the area last Monday afternoon.

Reverend Alan Read, the Anglican bishop of the Toronto Diocese, was in attendance at the ceremony, as were several parishioners of the church. Reverend David Barker introduced Bishop Read, and following a sermon and hymns, the dedications took place.

The pulpit, dedicated to the name of Holly Dawson, was constructed by Derek Rolfe of Maple Lake at the request of the church some time ago and recently installed. The pews in the church were dedicated to James H. Sisson by Mildred A. Sisson-Wright.

The new stained-glass windows at the rear of the church, which were installed last week, were dedicated to the memory of B. Napier Simpson Jr. by family and friends. The inscription on the bottom of the glass reads "Architect and parishioner who died in a plane crash in Newfoundland, June 23rd, 1978." The image on the glass shows St. Peter. Smaller windows on each side contain motifs suggesting the former Stanhope councillor's life.

Following the ceremony, the gathering enjoyed a pot luck supper in the basement of the church. Also present at the ceremony were Mrs. Audrey Simpson, wife of the late Napier Simpson, and Stephen Taylor, designer of the windows.

"You gave them the notion to go," said juvenile coach Joe Cox. "Nobody had to tell them they could get up to the Huskies." He added that players who had never thought about trying out for the team are going "to try now."

If ratepayers agree with council's position, the road workers could be off the job until the new year, when further MTC subsidies for 1980 will be forthcoming.

The new executive, following the meeting, said that any agreement made between the former executive and the Haliburton hockey representatives was no longer in effect.

The executive, it was announced at the meeting, will consist of the following members: Vice President, Mervin Barry; Secretary, Shirley Howe; Treasurer, Lois Davies, and directors Ross Ballantyne, Shirley Hie, Beulah Striding and Joe Shapiera. No president has been elected by the association.

Save light council says

The dark nights of winter could become a little shorter if the federal government agrees with a position taken by Haliburton County council last week.

At a meeting last Wednesday, council endorsed a resolution from the Town of Hawkesbury calling on the government to implement daylight saving time at the beginning of April instead of at the end of that month.

The resolution notes that a change could help save energy by taking advantage of the early morning sun and adding an hour of light at the end of the working day.

Notice of council's endorsement of the Hawkesbury resolution will be forwarded to the federal government.

the City of Peterborough), "can't be assured" that a decision it makes will be carried out.

"Whether we're going to get that worked out, I can't tell you," the Improvement District of Bicroft chairman said.

"The county pays a very small amount (to the CAS) when you consider the amount being paid by other areas, especially the City of Peterborough. By the same token if we're not being allowed to have our say, we should not be represented."

Reports on further developments within the CAS are expected to be heard at subsequent county council meetings.

Correction

A story on page seven of last week's Echo said that the president of Minden minor hockey and one of its directors resigned "in an apparent disagreement with other members over allowing an individual to coach in the system." The story went on to say that the executive had reversed and earlier decision not to allow Gary Warburton to coach.

In fact, Bob Wells and Neil Burk resigned over "personality conflicts" within the organization, and no decision was ever made that Gary Warburton would not be allowed to coach.

The Echo regrets the error, and any embarrassment it may have caused Bob Wells, Neil Burk, Gary Warburton or the executive of Minden minor hockey.

In last week's Echo, it was incorrectly stated in a story pertaining to the construction of the new Bank of Montreal in Haliburton that "there's been no real problem other than the workload (on the contractors)."

In fact, according to Bill Redgrave, project manager, the statement was referring to the workload on the Bank of Montreal, and not the contractors.

The Echo regrets any inconvenience or embarrassment the error may have caused.

independence that will allow them to hold down jobs and make their own decisions.

"When all is said and done, this house represents a chance for people who haven't had a chance," says Carol Smith. With her husband, Brian Smith, she moved to Haliburton in July to become full-time director of the residence. She has 10 years experience working with retarded and was director of a similar home in Sault Ste. Marie before taking on the directorship of the Haliburton residence.

The retarded, Smith says, "have a great courage, a marvellous capacity to endure. They have a sense of how to cope, but they need a sense of how to live, how to fit into the community, how to make friends, how to make decisions."

Society has traditionally been protective of the retarded, Smith says. They are no longer hidden away as they once were, of course, and programs designed to meet their needs are more common now than in the past, yet many retarded adults have never had an opportunity to socialize with each other, and with adults sensitive to their needs. The residence provides an environment where both are possible.

'There are no fairy tales'

"It's a total living concept," Smith says. It provides recreation, socialization and education with a view to "bringing a balance into the person's life."

Government regulations require that half of those accommodated must be county residents now housed in other institutions. The rest can come from anywhere in the county or the surrounding district. The only requirement is that those who live in the residence must participate in some form of vocational training. That may mean working at the ARC industries workshop at the Lakeview Centre, holding down a job in the community, or, as one resident is doing at present, attending special education classes at a local school.

Before a person is admitted, he must go through an orientation period during which the prospective resident and his parents can decide if the step is one they wish to take.

"We try to get as clear a picture as possible of the person, their schooling, their background, their social awareness and their needs," Carol Smith says. "The resident will find it difficult to stay if he doesn't have a good foundation of why he's here."

Brian Smith says there are "no fairy tales" about what living in the residence will mean. "We try to share with them what it's going to be like, that it's going to be a fairly intensive time."

Prospective residents spend a day or two visiting the house to get an idea of how it functions. For those who have lived sheltered, protected lives, the change can be a difficult one.

Carol Smith compares it to the kind of change a student would face leaving Haliburton for a university residence. The people, the environment, and the challenges are all new and often difficult. But just as a student who perseveres is rewarded with an education, so a resident who can face the initial challenge of moving from home to residence ultimately is rewarded with a greater ability to cope with daily living.

When the residence is full, probably before the end of the year, it will have three full-time staff members and two part-time staff as well as a full-time director. Eighty percent of the home's $82,000 budget will be provided by the provincial government. The other 20 percent must come from the local association for the mentally retarded through its "Flowers of Hope" campaign, which is currently underway. Residents receive pensions and must pay rent to live in the house, but they are allowed to keep $51 a month as a "comfort allowance".

Staff members need not have special education, but they must have personalities and experience suitable for the demands of the job. The key is "that the residents come first," Carol Smith says. That means the job often becomes a consuming vocation, a way of life. Not everyone is capable of meeting the challenge, but for those who can, the rewards are more than monetary.

Though it takes time and patience, working with the mentally handicapped adults pays off when the progress they make can be measured. A key concept in the residence is communication. Staff and residents sit down once a week to plan out the next seven days. The residents can air complaints and the staff has a chance to respond. The idea is to build up trust. Once that has been established, the process toward "normalization" of the residents, helping them to learn to live in the community outside the home's front door, can progress.

Perhaps the biggest challenge is the association and the residence's director face is to create and maintain an atmosphere of trust between the staff, parents of retarded adults, and the community at large. To do that, the home must be seen not as an institution but as a residence that provides a stepping stone upward from a sheltered and protected lifestyle toward whatever degree of independence an individual is capable of achieving.

Ultimately, those involved in the residence hope that someday it will no longer be necessary. With perseverance, support, and perhaps even a little luck, the house may eventually have given all the retarded adults of Haliburton County and the surrounding district a chance to find a place in the midst of society rather than on its fringes. If that happens, the house may see other uses which no one has yet envisioned.

In the years ahead there may well be a need for supervised apartments or other suitable accommodation for mentally handicapped adults in the area. But no matter what the long term future holds, the short term future is clear. The house on Mountain Street will continue to provide a living and learning experience for people who haven't had that opportunity before.

No, this is not a pumpkin, but rather an overgrown squash. The 192-pound giant was harvested by Patricia and Nick George of Kinmount last week. The squash had been growing on a vine that had produced several other large melons.

Economic commission structure may change

The Haliburton County Economic Development Commission is concerned that the structure of the group could change considerably after the beginning of the year, depending on county council wishes.

According to secretary Bob Stinson, the commission was "concerned" at a meeting last Thursday night that county council may "take away" some or all of the councillors sitting on the commission when the new year arrives. Commissioner Murray Fearrey pointed out that any change, depending on the thoughts of the commission by county council, could have a significant effect on the plans of the commission, and the possibility of carrying them out.

The prospect also could hold up any drafting of the commission's official 'Plan of Action', since it is not known what status or position the commission may hold in the future.

"How do we put together a plan when we don't know who will be here to help carry it out?" said Stinson. He added that a detrimental move by county council could put the commission "back to square one."

The commission decided that three of its members will work on a plan for approval at the next commission meeting. The sub-committee is expected to draft a constitution which would go to county council for their consideration.

Seniors services planned

Representatives from all parts of Haliburton County met at the Health Unit on Friday to organize support services for the elderly of the county.

A committee under the direction of Mrs. Doris McCann of Kennis Lake has studied the problems of the older and disabled people who would to consider a nursing home yet who are able and wish to remain in their own homes if they have someone who can give them help with such things as grocery shopping, a drive to the doctor's office, snow removal, a hot meal, library books, etc. The committee found that there were many people in Haliburton County in such circumstances. They found also that some groups already are doing a great deal in this direction and that there are people, some newly retired, who have the time and the desire to be helpful in this way.

The committee hopes to put together a plan which will use all of these volunteers and services in the best way

White paper proposal doesn't do enough: reeve

A provincial government proposal to allow municipalities with approved official plans to pass their own zoning by-laws is expected to come under fire from Haliburton County Council because the government wants the by-laws to be uncontested before they can be passed.

At a meeting last Wednesday, Dysart et al Reeve Murray Fearrey told council that only disputed clauses of zoning by-laws should be held up for Ontario Municipal Board review, while undisputed portions should be implemented.

The proposal to allow municipalities to approve their own zoning by-laws is contained in the White Paper on the Planning Act which is currently under discussion across the province. Currently, all zoning by-laws must be approved by the Ministry of Housing, and objections that cannot be resolved by councils before a by-law is submitted for approval must be aired at an Ontario Municipal Board hearing. (Two such hearings are underway in the county this week, in Stanhope and Monmouth Townships). The proposed reform in the White Paper would allow municipalities with approved official plans to circumvent the Ministry of Housing, but would still require an OMB hearing if any portion of a zoning by-law is disputed.

Reeve Fearrey sought council's support on a resolution calling on the government to allow undisputed clauses of zoning by-laws to be put into force while disputed portions await an OMB hearing.

At present, Dysart et al is the only municipality in Haliburton County with an approved official plan, but the county's planning strategy document may form the basis of an official plan for the county in the near future.

Reeve Fearrey said the proposal in the White Paper would not alter the current situation throughout the province in which zoning by-laws are held up for months that can stretch into a year or more, pending OMB hearings. Fearrey said allowing municipalities to put 95 percent of a by-law into force while a disputed five percent awaits a hearing would give municipalities more effective control of the planning process as well as cut down on the workload for the OMB. County council agreed to consider a formal resolution on the matter at its October meeting.

Helping to find an alternative

Last week, following a meeting with representatives of the Minden OPP detachment, the Minden recreation committee voted unanimously to cancel a rock concert scheduled for October 7. It is a decision that may not please some members of the community, but it is one with which the majority of ratepayers are likely to be in full agreement.

The OPP made no attempt to temper their strong objections to the concerts. Representatives of the detachment told the committee that the men ought not be subjected to the kind of abuse they experienced at a concert earlier this month, and that the massing of close to 2000 young people in one place created the possibility of serious violence and damage. So strong are feelings against the concerts among members of the force, that the detachment may seek an injunction against any future rock concerts in the community if a future committee decides to allow them.

There are no doubt, those who will say that the police are wrong to want to eliminate a situation in which they are subjected to verbal, and occasionally physical abuse. Policemen, some might say, are paid to do a job, and if that job carries with it certain risks and requires a certain ability to withstand verbal jabs, so be it. But jabs and abuses directed at police are not the issue. The police are concerned about the potential for a riot that exists at the concerts, as well as the necessity of protecting ordinary citizens from the irresponsible, and sometimes violent, minority present in any large crowd.

The unfortunate aspect of the situation is that rock fans who don't belong to that minority will be denied an opportunity to hear locally, the kind of music they enjoy. That fact was recognized by the recreation committee, who took steps to cancel the concert with reluctance.

In cancelling the concert there is no doubt that the committee was carrying out the wishes of the community. The future of concerts at the Minden arena will now be left in limbo, pending a decision by next year's committee.

In the meantime however, citizens should take the time to think about alternatives. For the fact is that the recreation committee has recognized its responsibility to provide entertainment that will help keep young people in the community and out of trouble. What the committee should not be expected to do on its own is come up with other options.

That will take the cooperation and the support of the community as a whole.

Approving what they didn't see

At a meeting last Wednesday, Haliburton County council gave its formal approval to a planning strategy document that will dictate planning policies for eight of the county's nine municipalities for the next five years. Approval of the document was a serious matter that should have required careful consideration. This was especially so since some 16 changes had been made to the document in meetings between the county's planning committee and representatives of various provincial government Ministries. Yet in a move that speaks volumes about why county council is the weak and ineffective body it often shows itself to be, councillors voted to approve the document, complete with changes, without ever having studied or even seen the changes in written form.

It is true that the changes were hammered out in the presence of the planning committee made up of county council members. And it is also true that planner John McDermott of Totten, Sims, Hubicki, who was the author of the document, outlined the changes that had been made in a verbal presentation to council. Yet it is equally true that parts of the document are clouded with "bafflegab" and bureaucratese, and that changing a single word might alter the entire intent of a clause or statement.

Ratepayers throughout the county depend on their elected representatives to act in a responsible way for the good of all. They will no doubt be concerned to learn that councillors approved something they had not seen.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

In regard to your last week's story headed "Minden hockey president, director resign."

Quote - "The president of Minden Minor Hockey and one of its directors resigned last week in an apparent disagreement with other members over allowing an individual to coach in the system. Bob Wells and Neil Burk resigned their positions when the rest of the executive decided to reconsider an earlier decision not to allow Gary Warburton to coach, according to a source close to the association." End of quote.

I do not know where this close source of information came from, but I will say that the reason given for the resignations is entirely untrue.

While I am not always in full agreement with Mr. Warburton's actions and ideas, I have never condemned his coaching abilities. In fact, Gary has a way about him that can bring out the best in players, something most of us can't do.

It is my understanding that Mr. Wells (Bob) was questioned by you as to whether this was the reason for his resignation and a negative answer was given.

As I was not approached as to my own reasons I would hope in the future that you would investigate further before making such statements.

Neil Burk,
Minden, Ontario

To the Editor:

You are to be commended for your Editorial: A delicate balance in your September 12 issue. In it you raised points and questions which should be the concerns of all taxpayers, parents, board members, and educators. To indicate that all is well and satisfactory in our high schools, and within our educational system on the basis of just statistics would be bordering on irresponsibility. Whether or not a school's P.T.R. compares favourably with that of schools in other parts of the province should not be a prime concern of board members and educators. What is essential is the basic educational needs of the individual student, and the particular expertise and personality of the individual teacher.

Consequently, very thoughtful considerations need to be given to the placement of a child in a certain school grouping. Will that particular person benefit more in a small class than a larger one? Does he/she need special consideration because of his/her strengths or weaknesses? What member of the teaching personnel can best match the needs of that particular child? These are merely a few of the many questions which board members and educators who are in authority need to be asking and solving.

A P.T.R. may appear to be a suitable guideline but it need not be sacred. Nor should a time-table be the controlling factor as to which students go where, and what students, including the number of students, a teacher must teach. Both the P.T.R. and the time-table are convenient guidelines, although they might be worrisome to administrators, for administration, but they could well impose an unnecessary stressful situation upon both students and teachers: those who are directly involved with the actual education. For instance, a "bright" child with an undiagnosed learning disability could be repeating a subject yet because of the master time-table he/she has to be admitted possibly into a large class with a teacher who might have little or no real opportunity and perhaps skill to work suitably with that particular person. The consequences of such a placement need not be bad; some learning may even take place, but the effects upon that child's personality and educational growth could well be devastating.

Much discussion may occur in respect to the small class vs. the big class. However, when a student is in a large class where its size and the room's facilities inhibit or even prevent the student and teacher from pursuing the normal objectives of the subject's curriculum, that student is experiencing a distinct disadvantage when compared to another student in a much smaller class where the aims of the subject and teacher are being met. Both students may pass the course and even graduate but the calibre of education for each student, at least in that particular subject area, is relatively rather different.

Obviously, Ontario's educational system cannot be all things to all children. Still those who are involved in education have an obligation to seek out and to provide for them the best approaches to education and human development known currently. Trying to save the tax dollars, as reasonable as it sounds, should not be used as a reason: it could well be an excuse. Failing to attend appropriately to the school children's needs today usually means a heavier burden to the taxpayers tomorrow. Ask anyone who has dealt with school drop-outs, for instance, in social service agencies, courts, prisons, and mental hospitals, about the tremendous costs to the taxpayers. The overall amount is astronomical. When the total cost of human services to an individual is put in its complete perspective the taxpayers will want the humanitarian approach to education rather than that of a P.T.R. and a time-table.

Gerry Feltham,
A concerned parent

To the Editor:

For the first time in my life I feel compelled to write an answer to one of your reader's letters and I hope you will find it worthy of space in your valuable paper.

Mr. or maybe Mrs. G. C. Springer seems to have a terrific grievance against the world in general and Haliburton County in particular. He or she starts off with the Chamber of Commerce, goes on about the bumps on the road, then about billboards etc. But the final dig, who needs the boat people? Maybe we don't need them but they need us and all the help and support we can give them. I wonder how much support G. C. Springer gives to our natives?

The church to which I belong has a group who are always working to help our own native people and have to work hard to do so. This is not a one year mission; it goes on year after year and has done so for a long, long time. To use a vulgarism G. C. Springer should put his/her money where his/her mouth is. Maybe G. C. would be a happier person trying to help others instead of finding fault all around.

Sincerely,
L. U. Clark,

Feir Play

by Creighton Feir

In this day and age with all of its trials and tribulations, it's very easy for many of us to take a dim look on everything that is going on in this old world. It seems that with the dawn of each new day brings with it news items that can very easily put us in a state of depression. If you read a daily newspaper or watch television or listen to the radio you are in touch with what is going on in this world around you. It would appear that the news is all bad when you think of the boat people, the energy crisis, separatism, murders, wars; we could go on and on. In recent weeks there has been some refreshing news on the sports pages heralding the fact that the Montreal Expos have a good chance of being in the World Series of baseball. It would appear to me that practically everyone in Canada are pulling for the Expos and now that we are just about a week away from the end of the regular season, it seems that we are all riding on every pitch as the Expos fight it out with the other front-running team, the Pittsburgh Pirates. It seems to me that during the past couple of weeks, every morning when I came to work I found myself asking someone how the Expos made out the previous evening. It took about 11 years but the Montreal club are now a contender. For you Toronto Blue Jay supporters, may we remind you not to be down-hearted; the team has only been in existence for three years so they have about another eight years before they will be pennant bound.

We have spoken many times on the subject of community involvement. The community is where most of our living is done and we have to agree that it is important to be involved. Many people get a great deal of satisfaction from being involved on local projects. One gets a great feeling of pride when he or she walks by something that they helped to establish. The community is always in need of workers, whether they are involved in group projects or individually going out to help better the lifestyle in the area. The community is only as good as you make it.

I wonder if the winters are getting colder and longer or is it just my imagination. Take this year for instance, if last Wednesday was any indication we could be in for a long winter. It was hard to believe but it was snowing here in Haliburton County. For the snowmobile and skiing enthusiasts, they may be involved in their favourite winter sport sooner than they think.

If you have any kind of a sense of humour you can't help but laugh at some of the disc jockeys on radio who sit there and spill out the gab when they aren't playing those rock and roll records. One day recently while driving along in my car I turned on the radio and picked up a DJ who was really in high gear and some of his material would make even the most depressed person in the world break out in laughter. He said that he heard that a rumour was circulating around Toronto that the Blue Jays wouldn't be playing ball there next year. He said that it was his opinion that they didn't play there this year. Later on in the program he let everyone know that he just received a phone call from his pals down at the Highland Creek Sewage Plant informing him that their business stinks.

The Lindsay Central Exhibition is over for another year. Whenever I think of the Lindsay Ex. there is one name that always comes to mind and that's the late Bert McLean who at one time was the hard working president of the Lindsay Ex. He was the farsighted individual who signed the Conklin midway to a five year contract, and brought such screen and TV stars as the Cisco Kid and Juliette to the grandstand performance. Bert McLean was always an optimist and always looked on the bright side of things. I can recall many years ago when he was president, being interviewed over the Lindsay radio station on the opening day of the Lindsay Ex. It was really raining heavy at the time but Bert told the listeners to come on down to Lindsay as he was positive that the sun would be shining brightly in the afternoon. I personally do not think that the Lindsay Central Exhibition has been as good since the days that Bert McLean was at the helm.

I was talking to my very good friend Cub Conebeare of Minden one day last week, and he gave me some good expert advice from the world of sports. Cub, who likes to look into his crystal ball and make predictions, told me that we can all look for a clean sweep from Montreal. He has the Montreal Alouettes winning the Grey Cup, the Montreal Expos taking the World Series and the ever popular Montreal Canadiens winning the Stanley Cup. Looking over the situation at the present time, it would appear to me that all three Montreal teams have a wonderful opportunity to be champions.

We should notice several colour tour buses in Haliburton this weekend as visitors will be coming in from other centres to view the leaves and see the countryside in all its beauty.

Hockey registrations continue this coming Saturday, September 29 at the Monmouth arena in Wilberforce from 12:00 noon to 3:00 p.m. Registration fees are $25 for one child, $45 for two children and $60 for three or more. Anyone interested in coaching or refereeing are asked to apply during registration.

May we remind you that the Ministry of Natural Resources Hunter Safety Examinations will be held in the following locations: Haliburton, October 9; Minden, October 16 and Gooderham on October 23. You are asked to contact Minden 286-1521 for an appointment.

In this column recently under a paragraph on Frank Dewey's talk to the Rotary Club of Haliburton on "Bee keeping", I stated that a hive can produce a thousand pounds of honey each year. It should have read one hundred pounds.

The ice is in at the Dysart Community Centre at Haliburton and the Haliburton Huskies are working out in preparation for the 1979-80 hockey season. Report from Parliament by Bill Scott M.P.

On September 17 Finance Minister John Crosbie announced the details of the government's promised mortgage interest and property tax credit plan.

The plan will provide the homeowner with a Mortgage Interest Credit (MIC) and Property Tax Credit (PTC) and will be phased in over four years, beginning with the current 1979 taxation year. When it is fully operational in 1982, it will provide a maximum tax credit of 25 percent of the first $5000 of interest payments on a mortgage ($1250) and a flat $250 tax credit reduction of property taxes (25 percent of $1000 of property taxes).

In each of the four years from now until 1982, one-quarter of the benefits will be made available as a credit to the taxpayer. What this means is that for the taxation year 1979, a homeowner with a mortgage in which the interest payments are at least $5000 will receive a tax credit for one-quarter of the full $1250 credit which will eventually be possible in 1982 and thereafter. The tax credit will be successively increased by one-fourth during the next four years. For this taxation year, 1979, the mortgage tax credit will therefore be $312.50 (¼ of $1250), increasing to $625 (½ of $1250) in 1980, to $937.50 (¾ of $1250) in 1981, and to the full $1250 in 1982.

(The tax credit on any amount of mortgage interest up to $5000 is calculated the same way. In the taxation year 1982 when it is fully in effect, the credit will be equal to 25 percent of the interest. In this taxation year, 1979, the tax credit will be one-quarter of this 25 percent, increasing successively by one-quarter in each taxation year up to 1982.)

The Property Tax Credit (PTC), which will be a flat $250 in 1982 when the plan is fully in effect, will be similarly phased in on quarterly segments over the next four years. For 1979 a homeowner will therefore receive a Property Tax Credit of $62.50. This will increase to $125 in 1980, to $187.50 in 1981 and to the full $250 in 1982.

The mortgage interest that will be eligible for the tax credit will be that incurred on all loans, whether secured by the home of the taxpayer or not, outstanding on or before September 17, 1979, to the extent that they were used to finance the acquisition of, or major alteration or addition to, the home of the taxpayer or his or her spouse.

The interest on all loans taken out after September 17, 1979, that are in the form of a mortgage or similar debt obligation secured by the home of the taxpayer or his or her spouse and that are used to finance the acquisition of, or major alteration or addition to, the home, will also be eligible for the Mortgage Interest Credit. The interest on loans to renew or refinance these previous loans, taken out for the same purpose (the acquisition of, or major alteration to, a home) will also be eligible. Such loans taken out after September 17, 1979, would of course have to be in the form of a mortgage or similar debt obligation secured by the home in order to qualify for the Mortgage Tax Credit on the interest. (Alterations or additions costing less than $5000 will not be considered as major for the purposes of this measure and will not qualify, nor will house furnishings and normal repair and maintenance expenditures, such as those for painting and redecorating.)

Houses eligible for this credit will be any self-contained dwelling unit located in Canada that was ordinarily occupied by the taxpayer during the year and was owned by the taxpayer or his or her spouse during the year. This will include a single family detached house or a self-contained dwelling within, or as part of, a multiple-unit residential building, such as a semi-detached house, a duplex, or a condominium apartment or a garden home. Mobile homes used as the primary residence of the taxpayer will also qualify.

Only one house per family will qualify. Secondary residences, such as cottages or other recreational real property, will not be eligible for the tax credit.

For purposes of eligibility, spouses will be permitted to split the credit between themselves in any agreed-upon manner, provided the total amount claimed does not exceed the allowable limits.

From the Chamber

by Bob Stinson

There Will be an Election

For the second consecutive year there are more individuals anxious to serve on the board of directors of the Chamber than there is positions. This is a healthy sign, not only for the Chamber, but for the community. The only pay that these people receive in return for their efforts is the satisfaction in knowing that they have contributed towards the economic viability of the business community as a whole. It is certainly gratifying to know that there is more than enough people prepared to do this.

Added to last week's list of new candidates we now have James Orr, who last year purchased the Sir Sam's Inn Lodge, and Dave Chatfield who both gathers news and sells advertising for radio and television interests, now running for a position on the board. The existing members of the board who are running for re-election are Barbara Bolin, Director of the Haliburton Campus for Sir Sandford Fleming College, Tim Casey of Shamrock Drilling, Ed Elais of Loralea Lodge, Rhonda Elstone of Elstone Construction Ltd., Bruce Henry of Halimar Resort, and Ann Lee of Silver Eagle Cottages. The executive consists of past president Dennis Waymouth of Silver Springs Cottages, vice-president Jim McLean of Air Haliburton, and president John Hogg of Mr. Fogg's Fine Foods.

The annual meeting is October 6 at the Stanhope Firefighters Hall and tickets are now on sale at the Chamber or from any of the above mentioned directors. Be sure to attend - afterwards you may be the "Highlander of the Year" - somebody is!

New Business in Minden

We are pleased to welcome Highlands Supply located on the Minden by-pass, as a new member of the business community and as a member of the Chamber. Manager Mike Raback has taken up residence on Highway 121 overlooking Minden Lake and is very enthusiastic about his new environment. Mike felt that too large a portion of our automotive parts dollars are going outside the county and hopes to tap some of that flow. Do drop in and visit Mike and his staff and make them welcome.

Boy, the world is in some mess today, isn't it? With two world wars in this century, and the oceans of blood shed in them, not to mention the limited wars in Korea and Viet Nam, you'd think mankind would come to its senses, sit back and say, "Hey, chaps. Enough is enough. Let's sit back, cultivate our own gardens, and have a few centuries of peace and friendship. Let's relax a little, try to make sure everybody has at least two squares a day, stop burning up irreplaceable energy, and make love, not war."

Not a chance. All over this planet people are starving, shooting, burning, blowing up, raping, mutilating, and demonstrating, all in the name of some non-existent ideal, such as freedom, or nationalism, or language, or religion, or colour. And nobody is making a nickel out of it all, except the purveyors of weapons.

All over the world, in vast areas of Asia, Africa and South America particularly, there are probably 300 times more refugees, orphans and just plain starving people than there were at the beginning of this century of enlightenment.

World War I, with its millions of dead, produced a bare decade and half of peace. It also signalled the beginning of the end of the fairly fair and benevolent British Empire, allowed the beginning of the massive international communism, and by its punitive peace terms, laid the foundations for World War II.

That one produced as little, or less. It vaulted Russia and the U.S. into the great confrontation that has been going on ever since. It wrote finis to the British Empire and reduced that sturdy people to a drained, impoverished, third-class power. It split Europe down the middle between two philosophies, communism and capitalism. It launched on the world the final weapon by which mankind could write kaput to his own species.

Has it smartened anybody up? No exactly. Today we have Iranians beating on Kurds, Chinese glaring at Russians, Cambodians hammering Laotians, blacks fighting blacks all over Africa, Jews and Palestinians toeing off, dictatorships in South America, India in Turmoil, revolution in Central America, Irishmen blowing

Teamwork Required to Adjust to GATT results

I hope that the Ontario government will add up the pluses and minuses of the recently concluded Tokyo round of negotiations on the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade and call on Ottawa to assist industry to adjust effectively to the new trading environment. Industry and Tourism Minister Larry Grossman has complimented the Trudeau government on the GATT outcome for manufacturing in Canada's most industrialized province. "There are, of course, some disappointments and dangers for some sectors," Mr. Grossman said. "The key objective now is to ensure adequate government assistance to enable those adversely affected to adjust and survive and to enable our manufacturing sector generally to capitalize on the new export opportunities. I have faith in the ability of our manufacturing sector to survive and thrive, given adequate government support and assistance."

The minister stated to the effect that the open and constructive consultation process established by the federal government under Pierre Trudeau should become a permanent feature of trade and industrial policy development in Canada. During the next eight years while the new lower tariff structures are being phased in by the world's

Eye on Sports

If there are any Minden hockey players between the ages of 16 and 18 years of age who read this column, you might be interested in hearing what your 'concerned' adult minor hockey parents and representatives said at a public meeting last week.

For the objective details, you can look at the news story on page one, but for a subjective commentary on your plight, let me give you the low-down.

As you know, a war has been going on since the beginning of time between the Haliburton and Minden hockey factions over whether players your age should be allowed to play for the Huskies or not. It's all for the protection of the Minden minor hockey system, so the concerned adults say. Last week, at that public meeting, an incredible exhibition of verbal violence took place the likes of which, I suggest, you have never seen on the ice.

These concerned adults (who will remain nameless for their benefit) screamed and yelled at each other for the better part of 45 minutes. You can guess what the argument was: whether any sort of 'deal' could be signed between the Huskies and Minden Minor Hockey to let you do what you want, and have an easier time doing it.

The shouting and the accusations continued, and of course, no one got anywhere. Mind you, personal vendettas were out in the open and there was a definite feeling that the Huskies should freeze in the dark as far as players go, but not one alternative was offered to solve this bitter struggle for players by anyone. Certainly, members of the old executive already had done so, but they are now gone, fed up with the wars, and the new executive has now decided to forget any former agreement made with the Huskies.

Without passing judgement on the fate of hockey in this county, I'll say only this to you: Despite what your adult peers want you to do, despite what Haliburton and Minden hockey factions agree or disagree to do, and despite all the arguments, do what you want to do. Play hockey when and where you want, and try not to let 'concerned' adults or teams who want your talents sway your decision. No minor hockey organization should have the right to control players.

...After that impassioned piece of advice, I want to offer my congratulations to the H.H.S.S. Redmen for winning their first game of the season. The juniors didn't do as well, I understand, in their first game, but the boys understand they're on that team chiefly to learn through experience. Undoubtedly coach Gary Brohman is the driving force behind this well thought-out junior varsity program, and thanks to him, the Redmen will always be a team with great depth. Or could it be those cheerleaders?...

...There's a men's hockey league starting up in Minden, and if any of you former stars who're feeling the frustrations of a spreading paunch want to see if you've still got the stuff, I understand there was a meeting last night. If you're interested, give Ted Vasey a call at 286-1950 and get those old rusty blades sharpened up...

...The Corduroy Enduro has come and gone again, and local favourite Dave 'Winkie' Dodd junior has walked away with two firsts again this year. Winkie, whose parents operate the Ailsaw General Store, is a top contender in the Canadian motorcycle racing circuit points race, and he tells me that he expects to do well at his next five meets. Here's a 17-year old lad winning trophies and praise, and most of us can't even ride a bicycle properly...

CHESS PLAYERS!

YOUNG AND OLD,
MASTERS AND BEGINNERS...

If you are interested in getting out of the house once a week to play some chess, come to the Rails' End Station Gallery on Thursday, October 4th at 7 p.m. The meeting will be held for the purpose of organizing and finding prospective players who wish to volunteer the use of their chessboards, and to determine exactly how many people are interested in playing. Players of any calibre from 16 years of age and up are welcome.

For further information, contact Joe Banks at the Haliburton Echo, phone 457-1037.

Fall program announced for Marksmen Club

The Haliburton County Marksmen Club has announced their fall program at their newly improved shooting range.

The main event for this season is the "Grand County Turkey Shoot", to be held on Sunday, September 30 at 2 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

Events will include .22 rifle and high power rifle shooting, using any type of sight including telescopic. Trap shooting, and for the first time, hand gun shooting will also be featured. Shooters are reminded to bring their own ammunition and to obtain permits to convey hand guns.

The range, which is about the size of a football field, has just been manicured by McKnights Haulage. A clubhouse donated by Dr. John Purc of Minden will be moved to the range at the beginning of October.

Also included in the fall program will be several practice and classification shoots to decide which rating members will have, and in which classification he or she will be shooting.

Later on in November, the annual meeting will take place, and will commence with a dinner.

The program for the winter will be decided at a later date, and ideas for the executive are welcomed. Firearm safety discussions, the proper maintenance and caring for guns and informative films could be part of the program.

Along the Trails

by Roy Bates

A columnist, like an editorial writer, lives in fear that the day will come when he'll sit down to stare at blank paper in a silent typewriter without inspiration to activate his fingers. This week, it's my turn to face that dilemma.

Just a few days ago, one of my editors asked if I could possibly get this column back on a weekly production basis. I said that I thought I could and more or less promised to do so. In his next breath, the same editor wondered aloud how we snowmobilers could manage to be thinking snow and snowmobile trails while the trees are still wearing their summer green. Today I might find it a little difficult to provide a convincing reply, and that, dear reader, is to be the subject matter of this week's column.

I look outside and I see the sun is shining. It's Sunday. It's September. It's not cold nor is it uncomfortably warm. It's just a grand sort of day to be poking about in the woods with a roll of coloured tape laying out a new trail to somewhere, perhaps another by-pass for a section of plowed road or a dryland circuit around a beaverpond. But it won't get done today for lethargy has set in. The kitchen door that's been sticking for weeks may get fixed, the old dog may get his itching ears scratched, and this column may get written but that's about the extent of a snowmobiler's enthusiasm in September. Besides, if we put it off until next month, maybe old reliable "George" will get it done.

Season openers see Redmen split, Brohman optimistic

The Haliburton Highlands Secondary School Redmen won their first game of the regular season here last Thursday against Brock high school from Cannington.

The stronger Redmen football team consistently outplayed Cannington throughout the game, but defeat came for Haliburton in the second game between the junior teams of the two schools. The Redmen juniors lost by a score of 21 to 18.

In the first quarter of the senior game, Haliburton conceded a single point after Brock's punter kicked into the end zone. High winds deterred the teams from playing to their full potential, and said coach Gary Brohman, "we really played only a half a game."

The Redmen had the wind in their favour in the second quarter, and on an off-tackle play, Butch Manery ran from Brock's 15-yard line for Haliburton's first touchdown. The attempted conversion was incomplete, but Tim Davies kicked a single-pointer late in the quarter to make the score 7 to 1 by the end of the half.

The Redmen chose to defend in the third quarter, against the wind, but the Haliburton defence held strong. No points were scored, and it wasn't until the final quarter of the game that the Redmen began working again.

Ed Roberts came up with a big play when he tackled the Brock quarterback in his own end-zone, coming up with two extra points for the team. And then, minutes later, Steve Davies, on a seven-yard off-tackle play, scored Haliburton's second major of the game. The conversion was again incomplete.

Brohman said of the game, "we were quite pleased - errors were kept quite low for the first game of the year." He added that the game had gone according to plan, and expects there will be "no problems" this year if the team plays up to its calibre.

But the junior game, though close, was a losing cause for Haliburton. Consisting of students 16 years of age and under, as well as any first-year football players, the

In the third, Brock picked up a single point off a punt, but, said Brohman, "our defense played very well," and no further gains were made by the opposition in the quarter.

Early in the final quarter, Brock scored their third major of the game on a five-yard plunge and the conversion was complete. The Redmen rebounded. Brett Moxam came up big on a 70-yard off-tackle play, and the convert was missed. The Red-young team lost to Brock 21 to 18.

In the first quarter, Brock opened the scoring with two quick touchdowns, and one conversion complete. The score remained 13 to 0 at the end of the first.

But Terry Allore, quarterback for the juniors, scored after he ran the ball in with a quarterback sneak. The move had been set up on a 30-yard passing play to Doug Tallman. With the conversion missed, and the half over, the score was 13 to 6.

men's defense held up, and the next time Haliburton was in possession, Doug Tallman scored a major on a 50-yard pass and run play, bringing the Redmen to within three points. But with the incomplete convert and a stubborn Brock defence, the score remained 21 to 18.

"It was an even match," said Brohman of the game. "We made a lot of mistakes, but all we can do is improve." He pointed out that the main aim of the junior team is to Dave Dodd junior shows the bike he took two firsts with in the Corduroy Enduro last weekend, and the trophies that were awarded to him as a result of his riding.

Allsaw 17-year old strong contender in C.M.A. circuit

'Winkie' Dodd takes double firsts, finishes fifth in low points standing

It's the classic story of the local boy making good.

Last weekend, at the 26th running of the Corduroy Enduro here in Haliburton County, Dave 'Winkie' Dodd junior of Allsaw walked away with two firsts, a feat which he also accomplished last year.

Dodd, who has just turned 17, topped the pace in the expert 200 c.c. class. He also was the recipient of the first place award for the Canadian championship in the expert class. Dodd also finished fifth in the low points "premier" standing. He was eight points away from taking the premier, finishing with a 26 low point total. The winner of the standings, John Cooper of New Jersey, finished with 18 points.

Dodd, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Dodd senior, has been a strong contender on the Canadian Motorcycle Association circuit, and is close to first place in the circuit standings. He said that he will "probably ride it again next year," and make his goal the premier award, which is something he has yet to win.

Compared to other runs throughout Canada and the United States, Dodd said the Corduroy Enduro is "a nice run". It is the longest enduro in North America, and drew some 240 riders from all over the continent.

Dodd said that he preferred the Haliburton-type of terrain for the cross-country riding, because, he said, "it's pretty well what I'm used to."

The young champion said other enduros are coming up in the next five weekends, one of which will take place in the United States. Naturally, he expects to do very well.

They left as quietly as they came, but in between those two days, motorcycle enthusiasts from all over the continent filled the air of Haliburton County with the screaming sound of small bore engines.

It happened this past weekend, when the 26th annual Corduroy Enduro drew over 240 bikers from as far away as New Mexico to the Haliburton area. Several hundred spectators also accompanied the riders, filling several lodges and hotels throughout the county. The event was organized and sponsored by the Canadian Motorcycle Association.

Locarno Lodge on Lake Kashagawigamog was the scene of much excitement Saturday morning as the bikers left on the first leg of the two-day race against the clock. The weekend weather stayed cool but sunny and clear during both days, and trail conditions remained good.

The enduro continued on Sunday, with hundreds lining spectator points along the way. This leg was the most difficult of the event, with riders having to make their way up the treacherous 'devil's staircase' near the Harburn Wells, which is a steep and rutty grade infamous for its challenge. Out of all the entries, only 75 managed to finish the race.

The day ended with trophy presentations to the various winners. The following are the first, second and third place finishers in each class in the 26th Corduroy Enduro.

Livery: Hard, but 'you had to do something'

Though a dying business, James Simpson stayed with it until the end

by Joe Banks

Livery stables are non-existent now, but in James Simpson's day, they were as common as gas stations are today.

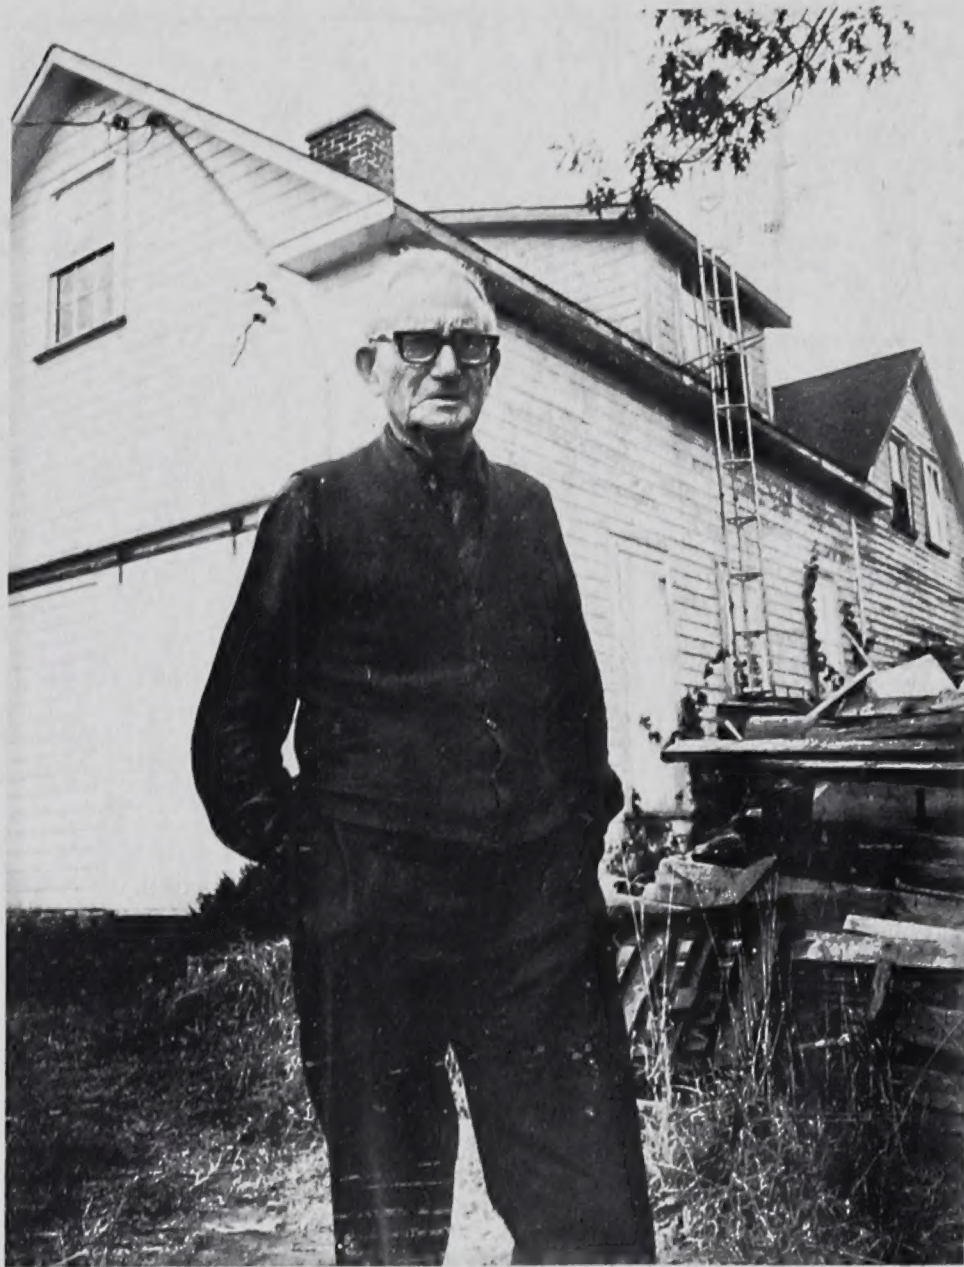

And no one realizes that more than Simpson, for he ran a livery in the hamlet of Kinmount for close to 13 years. And during that time, the 85-year old retiree had his share of horse manure, axle-deep mud and long hours. But the livery business was a good one during the horse and buggy era, and even before the roads were improved, the Simpson stables were operating at a brisk pace.

It all started in 1917, when, as a young man of 22, Simpson was faced with the prospect of working in the livery his parents had acquired. After the Kinmount fire, which razed much of the hamlet's business establishments, the storekeepers were very interested in purchasing the hotels which survived the blaze, so "they could start rebuilding right away," Simpson recalls. A local man who owned the livery stable in town made a proposition to the Simpsons, then the owners of the Northern Hotel. He would buy their hotel upon condition that they would buy his livery stable. Simpson's parents thought this to be a good idea, because they already had a small stable of their own, and the two businesses were combined into one.

And so it was done. Jim Simpson, who was at the time working for his parents in the hotel for room and board, accepted the hard duties of an operator of a livery stable.

"I had 10 horses when I started," Simpson says, "and two Model 'T' Ford cars." It wasn't a large livery, as far as livery stables went, but eventually Simpson bought the business off his parents. It would be quite a few years and a lot of sweat before the mortgage was paid off, and going into a business without any experience was no help.

"I could manage the livery all right, but I just didn't have the experience." And because he worked for his parents at the hotel for more or less room and board, he didn't have "a plug nickel" to start with. "But I kept struggling away," Simpson says, "and if I ever needed a buggy, I'd pay cash - couldn't afford to go into debt."

Because he had married the year he bought the livery, Simpson realized "we had to get into something." And that something was the type of business many people younger than 35 years would see as a novelty today, though then it was a serious business.

Simpson had two men working under him. With the livery open 24 hours a day, six days a week, hours were long. The business essentially provided people with hired transportation. Customers could rent horses from Simpson, or hire him, along with horse and buggy or cutter, to take them on excursions near and far. The Fords normally weren't rented out, and Simpson or one of his men chauffeured the passenger to his destination.

team. The situation became critical when, just north of the Black River, they were faced with a snow-bound road. Of course, four of the men had to get off the wagon to lighten the load, so Simpson made a logical move.

"The drunkest drove the team, and the rest of us walked ahead."

It wasn't only the snow that gave Simpson headaches in his job. When he drove the Fords, which could only be used in the summertime, there was scarcely enough room on the small roads around the county to service even the smallest automobile. When a car met another car, one or the other would have to back up to the nearest turn-off, depending upon who was closer to it. And if a hill was quite steep, the Ford would overheat since it functioned with a gravitational cooling system.

Simpson often drove the village doctor on his rounds, as the practitioner wasn't much of a horseman, though he had his own team, and didn't

'I seemed to have quite a bit to do'

Of course, extra work included watering and feeding the horses, keeping the buggies in shape, but the bulk of the labour involved taking customers to wherever they wanted to go.

"We used to drive all over the county," remembers the former horseman. "We'd go all the way up to Haliburton, Wilberforce, and even Dorset." The last word, "Dorset" causes a faint smile in Simpson, and his eyes give away the secret story he may be holding within the confines of his memory. Now he must tell that story, and he knows it.

"That's one trip I'll never forget," he says, glancing at a ray of light striking the wall from the window. "We'd left here one spring with a team and wagon to get to Dorset. The first day we went to Minden, and we were axle-deep in mud the whole way." The five men who contracted Simpson's services wanted to reach Dorset in time for the river drive. The men, after such a harrowing trip, picked up gallon jugs of whiskey at Hindon Hill, and proceeded to drink as Simpson drove the know how to run a motor car. "I seemed to have quite a bit to do," Simpson recalls, "but the money end was pretty good."

But the roads improved and the automobile became more common. The business petered out, and by 1930, he turned his livery into a repair garage, and managed to adapt to the times without much problem. Kinmount grew and shrunk around him, and his business survived the floods and fires that plagued the hamlet. His son, Clarke now operates his own garage, carrying on where his father left off. But Simpson has no regrets, and really doesn't miss "the old times".

"I was satisfied when I quit," he says frankly. "It's a better life now than it was in the horse days."

And as he takes a moment to reflect on the sum of all those years, years that were filled with hardships, he makes one last statement.

"I really don't know if I was impressed with any of it," he says, with one eye closed in thought. "But you had to do something."

Extendicare News

by Dr. W.O. Anderson

Our most hospitable Miss Susan Ainsworth has completed her allotted stint of employment with Extendicare as assistant activities director, and is about to enter local employment of a comparable nature. We all wish her the best, having while with us showed the greatest devotion to our welfare and happiness. It may interest some of you that Susan as well as Mrs. Pat Burk during their earlier days were girls at Gayventure. Susan has an invitation to visit us whenever she is lonesome.

Already we have had more than average of the summer flowers, which day after day remain in gorgeous display, petunias, snap dragons, roses, nasturtiums, zinnias big and button, marigolds, pansies, dahlias, impatiens, balsams, alliums white, all simply marvellous. The geraniums and begonias were a little disappointing but not a complete failure. It is too bad that some of these cannot be potted and brought in, but other years have taught us that it is not practical.

Tuesdays bingo is always a success. The volunteer helpers on duty this week were Mrs. Betty Wise, Mrs. Dorothy Iles, Mrs. Betty Gibson, Mrs. Greta Kellett and Miss Karen Henderson. Everyone won which made it nice. Karen reports 2900 cigarette boxes collected so far and they keep coming. Don't let's leave it all to Karen to win a wheelchair for one of our gang who needs it. All it takes is that instead of throwing your empty box into the garbage, put it into any drawer of your desk, and we will gather them and see to it that Karen gets them to add to the growing total. Moreover it is interesting to watch the numbers grow.

It worries us that "anthology" is becoming putrid while all about, our English language is wholesome pure. It is difficult to understand why governments do this. Surely there is no lobby intent on putridity.

Frost warnings being rather emphatic Wednesday evening as we brought our frost tender plants in - dahlias, impatiens, fuchsias, grape ivy, and the magnificent bamboo fern. It is quite a shock to these plants but it must be done. Now we can take winter in our stride.

Last week it seems that Hyland Crest was in town and to the look out by bus and didn't drop in to say "hello". It is possible from the look out they didn't see us, and even we can't see us from there.

There was quite a flurry of activity here Wednesday morning to bake a cake. They didn't fill us in but we think it was banana, an object lesson by the staff on how to do things to which our ladies contributed. One feature of this was the addition of a new volunteer helper, Mrs. Betty Yatsman of Haliburton. Thursday afternoon was our monthly birthday party for: Mary Currah, Mrs. Ethel Fader, and Harold McKelvey. This party was nicely conducted by the illustrious musical director Mrs. Marilyn Stouffer, assisted by Mrs. Betty Salvatori, the desired pianist and our Charles Plewman displaying excellent harmonica technique. Mainly the entertainment consisted of our singing many of the old favourites led by Mrs. Stouffer. A special treat by Marilyn was "Morning Has Broken" a relatively new but melodious solo. A few opening bars would be ideal to be awakened to each morning. Finally the "Happy Birthdays" for two of the celebrants, Mary and Ethel, Harold being away for the day and the cake came (perhaps it could be called a scurry banana cake). It was really delicious.

Now we learn that Harold McKelvey was discharged from Extendicare and will no longer be with us. We all wish him the best wherever he goes.

We are advised of the admission of John Purnell of Haliburton to be another Sissons celebrate!

Couples celebrate 60th anniversaries

Which Sisson is which? Two separate couples of Sissons spent Sunday celebrating their 60th wedding anniversaries. Mr. and Mrs. Leigh Sisson (below) spent their 60th with family and friends at St. Peter's Church at Maple Lake, while Mr. and Mrs. Andy Sisson celebrated their 60th year together with friends and relatives at their home in West Guilford. Andy and Leigh are distant cousins. How's that for coincidence?

Forty-one euchre teams converge on Haliburton Legion

Forty-one teams of euchre players sat down on Saturday, September 22, at the Haliburton Legion for the purpose of competing for the Eastern Regional Euchre Trophy. Haliburton Auxiliary having won this trophy in 1978, automatically became the hostesses for 1979. One hundred sixty-four ladies concentrated their efforts in becoming winners of this tournament with Cobourg Auxiliary emerging victorious. Renfrew Auxiliary came in a close second. These ladies travelled from as far away as Cornwall to the east, Ajax to the west, with various branches from the south and central part of Ontario in-between, with Haliburton being the most northern branch.

A roast beef dinner was served to over 200 following the tournament by local Auxiliary members, after which the head table guests addressed the visitors. Included at the head table were Roy Brohm who brought greetings from Dysart, Comrade Mel Robertson, District Deputy Zone Commander, who spoke on behalf of Haliburton Legion Branch as he is a member here, as well as the Zone and District, Comrade Rene Kuntz who is the Ontario Provincial Command

Sports Lady for the Ladies Auxiliary, Comrade Dolly Mills and her husband Jeff. Comrade Mills is the Regional Sports Officer, coming

The sun shone beautifully over the weekend bringing to Hyland Crest many visitors. The nice weather continued on into Monday.

Monday morning we went to the auditorium for the fun and fitness program. We had a real good number of people turn out, in fact the most yet. There are more wheelchair residents coming to fun and fitness lately, and we're certainly pleased to have them take part and to enjoy the singing and games.

In the afternoon, the ladies went to crafts to work on their projects. Everyone worked especially hard, and were rewarded with tea and cookies after a busy session.

After we had our tea, Carrie Jones suggested we enjoy the sunshine by taking a walk. Everyone agreed that this was a very good idea. We got our craft materials all put away, and got our sweaters and hats and headed outside. Some of the gentlemen joined us as we walked around the block. Mrs. Avery and Mrs. Miller got together and reminisced about Scotland where they were born and we even sang a few little Scottish tunes as we walked. Everyone enjoyed the stroll, and it is nice to be able to enjoy the sunshine before the cold weather comes.

Tuesday morning, several residents went to the chapel to worship with Rev. Douglas Miller of the United Church in Minden. Mr. Fred Ballard played the organ while we sang some old familiar hymns.

It was movie time later on in the afternoon. There was a good number in attendance to watch two very interesting movies.

The first film was entitled Muskie Fever. The fishermen showed us how to catch a muskie, which is one of the greatest game fish. These huge fish are really fun to catch, and are considered a trophy. They live in the dense weedy areas, in cold fresh water. The muskie is a very mean looking fish, with many fang-like teeth resembling that of a shark. We learned that the largest muskie ever caught was 70 pounds. The men in the audience particularly enjoyed the action in this film.

The Welcome Season was filmed in New Brunswick. We were taken on a tour, through the countryside, and were shown the hospitality of the people there. The people are mostly French descent, and they sang some good down east music for us. We were shown the methods of fishing, which is their greatest industry. We were very enthused with the beauty of Canada's picture province, New Brunswick.

Wednesday morning was fun and fitness time again. We played roll the ball, and Amelia Good was the winner this time with a score of 90 points. We had fun as usual, as we played kick the ball.

At one o'clock the ladies went to the craft room, while the gentlemen gathered with Lloyd Coleman in the auditorium for carpet bowling. After the game, the gentlemen joined the ladies for tea and goodies.

About an hour before supper, we gathered in the main lounge and sang a few old favourite songs.

The ladies of the L.O.B.A. in Haliburton made our Thursday afternoon tea party a delight. They brought a delicious lunch consisting of a lovely assortment of sandwiches and cookies. We would like to thank these people for making the afternoon an enjoyable time.

Thursday evening, the Kinsmen were back with us to call bingo. The residents look forward to and enjoy the Thursday night bingos, when we have quite a few lucky winners.

Friday morning at fun and fitness, we had a real good time. Doris was back with us to play the piano, and we tried a new song with exercises. It is great to see our residents singing out with a smile on their faces. We finished the session with an exciting game of kick the ball.

In the afternoon, we gathered in the main lounge to sing some hymns and old time favourites. We spent a very enjoyable afternoon singing together around the piano, bringing to a close another week at Hyland Crest.

Norland Notebook

Does it pay to commit a crime? I imagine that if you asked Richard Nixon, former President of the United States that he would answer in the affirmative. Four years ago he was nearly broke and today because of the Watergate scandal he's well on his way to being a multi-millionaire. Last year he received a government pension of $78,000, and estimated $500,000 for his interview on T.V. with David Frost, more than one million dollars in book royalties for his memoirs and tens of thousands of dollars for separate T.V. appearances. There must be something wrong with our legal system when a person commits a crime and then prospers from it.

As a mother preparing lunches for your children, to take with them to school, remember that whatever is in the paper bag is probably not going to be refrigerated for many hours. So choose foods that store well at room temperatures. Bread, biscuits, crackers, peanut butter, raw or dried fruits, raw vegetables, cheese, pickles, salami or any other dry sausage are good examples. Canned foods that aren't opened until lunchtime are also perfectly safe. Do keep safety precautions in mind for unrefrigerated lunches.

The hockey association of the Norland Athletic Club is sponsoring a dance on Saturday, October 13 in the Norland Community Hall from 9:00 p.m. to 1:00 a.m. Disc jockey, Rockin' Robin Hood will supply the music for dancing, bar will be licensed under L.L.B.O., refreshments will be served, and admission is $3.00 per person. Plan to come out and join your friends and support the Norland hockey team.

It was with dismay that we learned about the accident that seriously injured John Grozelle on Friday, September 14. John is the son-in-law of Jim and Betty Davey and married to their daughter, Pat. He was crossing railway tracks north of Newmarket on Friday afternoon when the station wagon which he was driving was struck by a train. He suffered severe head injuries as well as many other broken bones and ribs on the upper part of his body. Today, a week later, in Sunnybrook Hospital, his condition is unchanged. We extend get well wishes to him and strength and faith to his wife and his family at this unfortunate time.

Wasn't it cold on Wednesday evening (September 19) and early Thursday morning? Several people in the Norland area sighted their first snowfall of the season Wednesday morning. In the Head Lake vicinity and north of Norland the wet, white flakes came down for about half an hour.

The weather has certainly been variable because the temperature climbed to over 70 degrees Thursday afternoon. I hope that wasn't our Indian summer! Some are saying that it is going to be a long, cold winter because of the number of acorns on the oak trees and the bountiful apple crop. Only time will tell.

Red and White store owner, Peter Purcell has been busy painting and fixing up the front of his store. In the past couple of weeks, Jesse Buxey has recemented and patched the store's wide front steps and the concrete entrance and this work has greatly enhanced the appearance of the store.

Two members from the newly formed Bobcaygeon Lions Club were dinner guests at the Coboconk Lions meeting on Thursday, September 20. The local Lions were invited to attend the Bobcaygeon charter dinner and dance on Saturday, October 13 in Bobcaygeon. During the business meeting the Coboconk Lion members approved motions to send $50 to the Seeing Eye Dog Training School and $50 to the Durham Region C.N.I.B. manager to use to purchase aids for the blind.

Lindsay Rotary Club is starting their travelogue series on Thursday, October 11 in the Academy Theatre, Lindsay. Francis Reidelberger will narrate and show his pictures on "England by Canal Boat". Season tickets are $12, good for any six admissions and available from banks, trust companies and Rotarians in Lindsay. If their program for 1979-1980 is as enjoyable as last year's, a season's ticket will be a good investment.

There are only two more days to purchase the great bargains in the Norland U.C.W. Opportunity Shop. Saturdays, September 29 and October 6 are the last afternoons from 1:00 to 4:00 p.m. that the shop will be open this year. There is a wide and varied selection of nearly new winter coats and boots, wool dresses, jackets, hats, pants, etc. for men, women and children at very reasonable prices. The shop is situated on east side of Highway 35, just south of Highway 503 beside Norland Marine.

A cigarette lighter was left at the dance on Saturday, September 15 in Norland Community Hall. If it belongs to you, it may be claimed by calling me - 454-3233.

A very lovely occasion took place at St. Peter's Anglican Church, where Mr. and Mrs. Leigh Sisson celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary. It began Saturday noon when the Anglican ladies served a delicious turkey dinner to over 60 relatives. Wilfred Mason was MC, Wray Sisson proposed a toast to the bride. Leigh replied and mentioned that three sets of twins were present. The relatives had come from Schreiber, Orillia, Meaford, Markdale, Windsor, London, Belleville, Toronto and Dunsford as well as locally. From two to four p.m. was open house and as guests entered the church hall, Miss Phrona Sisson was in charge of the guest book and showed pictures of the wedding many long years ago. After congratulating the bride and groom, we viewed the wedding cake, which was a work of art and had been decorated by Mrs. Gorveatt, but made by Minnie with the help of Ella Toye. Minnie has pleased many brides by making and decorating their cakes. Tables were laden with all kinds of goodies. Three young boys saw that everyone was well served and Mrs. Basil Sisson and Mrs. Arthur Oliver poured tea. Leigh's brother married my sister, so a good many of the guests were also our relatives. Flowers were everywhere. Minnie loves flowers and their home is surrounded with them. When they were first married they lived where the Homestead now stands and many of the children spent their holidays with aunt Minnie and uncle Leigh. When they married, they rented cottages near by. They were glad to now pay homage

Fred and Florence Taylor were honoured guests at a picnic held recently to mark their 25th wedding anniversary. The weather was perfect for the event as 70 friends and relatives gathered together on the back lawn to present their good wishes to this popular couple. Participating in the fun were the Taylor children: Greg, Jane and Barbara, also the proud grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Billings. Out of town guests included Fred's aunt May and uncle Bill with their children Jean and Bud from Cobourg, Jack and Willa Turpin from Hastings and others from Petawawa, Peterborough, Lindsay, etc.

The lovely gifts received included a silver tea service, wine glasses, silver tea pot, sugar bowl and cream jug. It was a happy day to remember.

Monmouth senior citizens enjoyed a three-day trip to Sault Ste. Marie. Leaving at six a.m. they travelled by bus and stopped overnight at the Commodore Hotel. Next morning they went by train through the Agawa Canyon.

The scenery was magnificent.

As the train travelled up and down hills and around numerous bends everyone enjoyed a panorama of colour. The leaves were at their brilliant best. They are about three weeks ahead of those in Haliburton County. The weather was cool but pleasant and mainly sunny. The next day, crossing the lake to Manitoulin Island presented the one unpleasant episode of the trip when high winds caused a rough voyage with enormous waves that tossed the boat around and several people became sea sick.

However, the bus trip home returned everyone to good spirits. Some excellent meals were enjoyed and this trip was voted as one of the best ever.

The Wilberforce Brownie pack are organizing again at this time. The membership last year was 15. Many of these flew up to Guides. This year's enrolment is seven. This is a very fine organization. It is under the leadership of Doris Waymouth, known to the girls as Brown Owl and Roberta Walsh, known as Tawny Owl. These two busy people give freely of their time and talents to work with the girls. They enjoy teaching character building ideals. The girls learn to cooperate with one another, to do simple tasks, to sing and play games. The leaders would like to see more Brownies register. The girls are accepted from ages six to nine. They wear neat, brown uniforms. At present they are meeting every Thursday after school at the Lloyd Watson Memorial Centre.

Last week the pack decided to take Brown Owl on a jaunt to look at the haunted house. It turned out that no one knew the location so they never did get there, but enjoyed the hike nevertheless.

Chatting with Irene

by Irene Moore

Fall is here and well we know it, after the frosts we have had and we even had snow one morning. Oh yes, it snowed but one had to look out the window to see it falling for it melted as it hit the ground. Anyway it is time to get all the freezables into the basement and start putting on the storm windows and doors. In other words we are all going to have to start getting ready for winter. Ugh, how I hate that word ("winter"). Oh well, I guess there are many people who feel as I do but there is not much that can be done about it is there?

Mrs. Shirley Hewitt spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Bob Dudman at their new home in Markham.

Birthdays at "Hyland Crest" for the month of October are: Thomas Harrison - 6th; Ethel MacDonald - 10th; Nello Mankinen - 19th; Berta Dawson - 22nd; Sarah Simmons - 25th. Just remember, a card will make someone happy.

Mr. and Mrs. Syd West have been on a three week holiday. While away they visited their daughter Ellen and family in Campbellville; also their son in Grand Valley.

The mini card party had a good turnout for their first fall gathering. Winners were for bridge - Diane Warnes; cribbage - Anne Dawson, Gladys Wruth; euchre - high and lone hand, Mary Little, Johann Beattie.

Mrs. Eleanor Bunker has been visiting with the Gary Williams at Stouffville and enjoyed spoiling her new granddaughter.

Don't forget the puppet show at the municipal office (upstairs) this Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Durant of Glace Bay, Nova Scotia; and Mrs. Hilda O'Keefe from Toronto have been visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Austen at Brady's Lake.

Some of the Rotarians and their wives enjoyed a fun weekend in Bracebridge recently.

Donnie and Davie Bint of Haliburton spent the weekend with the Bob Emmersons.

It has happened again. I was downtown Sunday afternoon and as I was passing the public washrooms, decided to stop and check them. Sure enough they were locked up tight. This was in the afternoon and there were enough people around the town that they should have been open. It is not right to expect the stores that are open to have to allow people to use the facilities in their place of business when there are excellent facilities by the fire hall.

Dean Hewitt spent the weekend in Hamilton.

The October meeting of the Minden & District Horticultural Society will be held in the Minden Council Chambers at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, October 2. Guest speaker will be Mr. G. Brooking of Northwood Nursery, Wilberforce. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Sears of Oshawa and Miss Sandra Sears of Toronto visited with Mr. and Mrs. Milton Sears last Sunday.

Mrs. Edith Welch has had Mrs. Mildred Gillespie of Sun City, Arizona visiting with her for the past two weeks.

I journeyed to Bracebridge on Saturday and the colours along Highway 35 and County Road 1 are starting to become really lovely. By next weekend they should be nearly at their peak. Closer to Bracebridge they aren't as bright yet but are coming along.

Clara Coulter of Peterborough has been visiting with Maude Coulter for several weeks.

There was a bridal shower for Miss Anne MacIntosh in Minden United Church hall last Thursday evening. Anne received many useful gifts and graciously thanked all the ladies.

The Women's Institute met at the Orange Hall last Wednesday afternoon. The president welcomed the 24 members and two guests. The five hostesses each read a humorous or sentimental poem.

The card convener reported sending 51 cards since the June meeting.

Correspondence was read by the secretary and the president, Mrs. C. Brown, was asked to attend the area convention in Toronto in November.

The District Craft Day will be held in Fenelon Falls on October 17 and members are asked to supply some crafts for the display table and to help with the lunch. The convener of Family and Consumer Affairs, Mrs. Lorne Dawson, gave an informative and interesting paper on not so much salt on the roads as it contaminates so many things even while being needed for safe driving. It also rusts cars if used too freely.

The president then asked Mrs. Lynna Cox to present a farewell gift to Mrs. Dawson who is leaving Minden next month. The well wishes of the Women's Institute go with her when she leaves.

The next meeting will be held at the United Church Hall on October 10, 2 p.m. rather than October 17. All interested ladies are welcome to the W.I. meetings.

Adios and take care now.

"We call them the good old days because we weren't old and we were talking about the nights."

Irene and Jack Clayton have returned from a motor trip to the south eastern part of the province. While they were there they enjoyed a boat trip through the Thousand Islands.

There's going to be a bus trip to see the colours on Wednesday, October 3 that will proceed through Haliburton, Bancroft and on to Whitney and back home through Algonquin Park. The Dorset Lions Club have donated a sum of money towards this trip which is greatly appreciated by the Senior Club. The trip is open to other than club members so if you are interested you may call Jeanette Large at 766-2277 for particulars. The route being followed is through a beautiful section of the country so it should be very enjoyable.

Two local ladies have returned from an interesting trip through England, Scotland and Wales. They went by plane from Toronto and after arriving at Heathrow, travelled north to Stratford, Avon, through the Thames Valley and on to Edinburgh, Scotland, where they stayed for several days. While there they attended the Tattoo, which was held in the Esplanade of old Edinburgh castle and was very colourful and entertaining. The performance they saw fell on the day of Lord Mountbatten's funeral so there was special music in his honour and it was all very touching and emotional. From Edinburgh they drove through Gretna Green, Bobby Burns country and lush agricultural areas to North Wales, Stonehenge, Windsor and Devonshire.

while in Devonshire they enjoyed the luscious scones with pure Devonshire cream that one reads about. They had a wonderful time and would recommend the trip to anyone.

We have one-way traffic on the by-pass bridge temporarily while there are repairs being made to the structure.

Dental survey to be carried out in county school

Dental services staff from the Haliburton, Kawartha Pine Ridge District Health Unit will visit all seven elementary schools in Haliburton County to carry out a dental health survey.

Main purpose of the survey, in which each student receives a dental inspection, is to evaluate the school dental health program, and in particular, to measure the benefits of the fluoride mouthing-rinsing program, according to Dennis Warrick, dental services director for the Health Unit.

As an additional service to parents, students will be given the results of their dental inspection on a "take-home" card. Warrick said. It is expected that in some cases, parents may be advised of conditions in their child's mouth requiring attention.

afternoon movies. 1. "A is for architecture", a resume of man's architecture from ancient Egypt to the present.

This film was not too appealing because none of us are builders. 2. "Alexander McKenzie" the man for whom the McKenzie River was named after its discovery and documentation. We salute all of those adventurous pioneers who went into the wilds to plot the beginning of Canada. It was a good film that showed even then the blending of the Inuit and the white man.

We are trying another experiment to learn if we can successfully pot mignonette and alliums, but the degree of wilt of some brought in Saturday suggests they will not take it. The mignonette, if it survives with the dozen or so candles of bloom and seed pods, may add a trifle of fragrance to our atmosphere. The spread of an allium in a pot in full bloom is quite attractive.

The threat of a quite severe frost Sunday morning decided us to pick our pepper squash and in all it filled a box 2 x 2 x 2 or 3 cubic feet, not bad, but wait till they are on the table, cooked as the cook decides. Another look at the cucumbers enabled us to pick up a nice dish-full and many of these were gherkins which we hope will be made into those quite tart pickles. Then we looked at the beets which will provide us with some nice greens Sunday dinner and beets as a vegetable Monday. It sure is nice to have a garden like this getting the produce fresh, and is an encouragement to those who cultivated - Norman Titus, Charles Welch, Ray Smith and perhaps some of the ladies.

Take the positive approach to being a parent!

We've got a series of "Kids are people" booklets that can help you with the everyday problems of raising children.

Will I ever sleep again? ☐

A booklet dedicated to baby's sleep habits. How to deal with baby's night wakings, nightmares, etc. Remember, it's best to start bedtime routines early in baby's life. This folder is a good place to begin.

Playing and learning (toddlers and infants) ☐

Infants and toddlers love to explore. Play-and-learn games are key ingredients to a healthy, positive child-parent relationship: doing, touching, tasting, and dramatic play. Also, "nursery songs", "finger and toe games", "story telling" and "mayonnaise painting". Play-and-learn games help baby's general development!

Aggression is natural ☐

Children go through the same feelings of frustration and anger as you do. And sometimes it's hard to get a handle on the hostility your child is experiencing. With a little self-control, love and the advice contained in this folder, you can make your child's aggressive tendencies a positive form of self-expression.

Jealousy ☐

It's practically impossible to prevent your older child from growing suspicious when a strange new baby arrives in the home. Help your child overcome these feelings by knowing about them before they happen. "What to do when baby arrives?", "special treats", and "shared caring" are just a few of the sensible suggestions this pamphlet offers. Prepare your child before the second baby comes along.

Toilet training ☐

Some helpful do's, don'ts and things to remember when it's time to produce the potty. Toilet training need not be inconvenient, embarrassing, frustrating or disappointing. Here's an effective guide to build your confidence in coping with this complicated issue! Minimize the child's problems and maximize your confidence.

Freedom to grow ☐

Psychologists believe that children should try to learn new skills naturally. Kids want to do things for themselves but can be discouraged when over-protected. We all want our children to grow up to be responsible, independent adults. This helpful folder can serve as an excellent guide along the way.

Discipline ☐

Discipline is confusing to many. Some feel it is wrong to be angry with a child. Discipline, however, is necessary to a healthy parent-child relationship. Ideally, discipline helps a child become self-confident and, more importantly, self-disciplined. Although there are no pat answers, this folder offers some reasonable suggestions, when your child becomes unreasonable.

Children are people. ☐

The importance of praise and encouragement, consistency in discipline, and the gift of love are discussed. The "child as a person" theory is examined with special emphasis on the early development of a positive parent-child relationship.

Haliburton Highlights

by Creighton Feir

At a recent meeting of the Rotary Club of Haliburton, the program was taken over by Ken Langdon who will be the chairman of the 1980 Haliburton Rotary Summer Carnival. Ken stated at the start of the session that he had ten items on the agenda. Two were covered leaving a total of eight to be discussed at a future meeting. The two items that were discussed brought many good constructive ideas from the members present. After a lengthy discussion and a vote it was decided that the draw prize would be a van. The parade can stand some improving and everyone agreed to put in a float next year. More music and bands for the parade also came up for discussion.

We have just been advised that a Tri-County Hockey Referees Clinic will be held at the Dysart Community Centre in Haliburton this coming Thursday evening, September 27 starting at 7 p.m. For all those who will be seeking further information, please contact either Claude Parish or Bill Hartin. All those interested are invited to attend.

Hyland Lumber Limited at Haliburton announced this week the appointment of Bruce Bounsall as General Manager of the company's retail operation. Bruce, who is a life-long resident of Haliburton County, has many years experience in the retailing lumber and building materials trade.

If you are interested in getting out of the house once a week to play some chess, come to the Ralls' End Station Gallery in Haliburton on Thursday, October 4 at 7 p.m. The meeting will be held for the purpose of organizing and finding prospective players who wish to volunteer the use of their chessboards, and to determine exactly how many people are interested in playing. Players of any calibre from 16 years of age and up are welcome. For further information, contact Joe Banks at the Haliburton County Echo, phone 457-1037.

The Haliburton Minor Hockey Free Clinic Schedule continues at the Dysart Community Centre in Haliburton this Wednesday, Thursday and Friday ending on September 28. Minor Hockey registration will take place at the arena this coming Saturday, September 29 from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. All those interested in playing in the Haliburton Minor Hockey Association this winter are asked to be present and to sign up.

Work continues on the foundation for the new Bank of Montreal on the main street in Haliburton and we understand that the new building will be completed by the end of December.

A good crowd was in attendance at the Festacolor dance which was held at the Haliburton arena auditorium last Saturday night and which was presented by the Kinsmen Club of Haliburton. The annual turkey supper sponsored by the Haliburton Figure Skating Club at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall on Sunday afternoon attracted a large number of people.

A sign on the front door of the Haliburton Post Office informs everyone that as of September 22 and until further notice, the mail box lobby will be closed from Saturday at 6 p.m. until Monday at 8:30 a.m. We understand that these measures have to be taken due to the recent vandalism at the post office.

Although the council keep adding new street lights in Haliburton every year, we noticed the other evening that there are still many streets in the village that could use one or two more lights. There are two or three spots on Maple Avenue that are badly in need of more light.

Here's something to think about: Don't put off for tomorrow what you can do today, because if you enjoy it today you can do it again tomorrow.

A large number of Rotarians and their wives from the Rotary Club of Haliburton attended the District Conference held over the past weekend at Clevelands House in the Muskokas.

We notice in the entertainment section of the Toronto Star that the motion picture "Meatballs" which was filmed at Camp White Pine and other sections of Haliburton and surrounding area is in its 13th week at the Imperial Theatre in Toronto. It is also playing at other theatres in and around Metro.

Here are a few personals.... Mr. and Mrs. Bob Morrow left this week for a month's vacation in the western provinces. Mr. Dick Logan of Toronto was a visitor here last week. Messrs. Robert Jackson and Paul Beattie have returned home after a three week vacation out west. Mr. and Mrs. Vince Connaughton of Haliburton were recent visitors to London, Ontario. Mr. Rick Bain was a business visitor to Pembroke last Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Mervyn Elstone and family attended the Lindsay Central Exhibition last Friday evening. A speedy recovery is wished for Ron Curry and Wayne Wood who have both been on the sick list. Some young people from Haliburton attended the Burton Cummings show held at the Peterborough Memorial Centre last Wednesday night.

The Haliburton Senior Citizens Club is back in operation at the Dysart Community Centre in Haliburton after a two-month summer recess. This fast growing group which meets every Thursday, sponsored a bus trip recently to Sault Ste. Marie and all points north. If you are in this age group but up to this point have not become a member, why not join today. You don't know what you're missing.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Shelton of Burlington spent Friday and Saturday with her brother and his wife, Edwin and Mary Robertson last week.

Some members of the Haliburton Senior Citizens Club No. 935 enjoyed a delightful trip on September 18, 19, 20 to the famous "Agawa Canyon". This beauty tour on the Algoma Central Railway was a spectacular sight to behold in autumn. The trip on the ferry from Manitoulin Island to Tobermory was a rough one, that many will remember for a very long time!

Friends of Harry Woolley will be sorry to learn he is in Sunnybrook Hospital, Toronto, as a patient for a few days. We all wish you a speedy recovery.

Quite a few from the village and surrounding area attended the lovely afternoon party given by our M.P. Bill Scott at his attractive home in Kinmount on Sunday afternoon, September 23. Many thanks from those who attended.

tention of which they were unaware. It is also hoped that the findings on the take-home card will be passed on to the family dentist when necessary, Warrick said.

The last county survey undertaken during the 1975-76 school year, the same year the fluoride rinsing program began, found that 54 percent of kindergarten to grade 8 students had "no tooth decay". This compares with only 15 percent who were "no decay" in 1970-71 - the first year of the School Dental Health Program, according to Warrick.

Along the Trails

And even he is not totally immune to the lethargy bug. In a snowmobiler organization, particularly a trail-building, area-promoting association like the H.C.S.A., we cannot afford an overdose of complacency at this or any other time. To stand still is actually to slide backwards for while we hesitate the rest of the world moves on around us. We may take pride in past accomplishments, we may even convince ourselves that the facilities we've provided are second to none, but if we become completely satisfied that all is done that needs to be done we will find ourselves in serious trouble.

It probably matters little whether we do it today, next week, or the week after that, what's important is that we recognize there is still a job to be done, and when the opportune time comes that we put our hearts and our backs into it.

The first, and most important job that faces us at this time is the overhaul and rejuvenation of the Haliburton County Snowmobile Association. The opportune time is Saturday, October 6.

Much of the overhauling should, and I believe must, come from within the organization, from the members, by their active participation in this general meeting. These members should not be so complacent as to simply attend and listen, (or to stay home and read about it in the next club newsletter), they should be there to speak their minds on every issue of concern and to elect a board of directors who will lead the organization in the way that it should go.

The meeting - October 6, 7:00 p.m., in the Minden arena auditorium - is open as well to the business community and all concerned citizens.

Your presence alone will show your appreciation for past efforts and will spur the club on to even more fruitful endeavors.

It is an opportune time, this Thanksgiving weekend, for all of us to pool our ideas and our resources, and to get solidly behind the Haliburton County Snowmobile Association.

the one county service organization that has set its sights on Old Man Winter. It is not a time to place our reliance on poor old arthritic, near-sighted, deaf and stumbling "George".

Smiley

up each other with giddy abandon, old Uncle Tom Cobley and all.

We don't seem to learn much, do we? The United Nations, a noble idea, conceived with a touch of the greatness man can aspire to, is a joke, albeit an expensive one, merely a political sounding-board for every new pipsqueak nation that wants some publicity, along with plenty of foreign aid.

The U.S., which emerged from W.W. II as a great, powerful and wealthy nation, has been terribly weakened, chiefly by its external affairs policies, or lack of them, and the meddling in foreign affairs of the notorious CIA.

It had its shining moments: the Marshall Plan to put devastated Europe back on its feet; Kennedy's showdown with Khrushchev over the Cuban missiles instalment; an attempt to make a better deal for blacks in their own country.

But these were flawed by other events and attitudes: the backing of right-wing dictators around the world; the loss of face in Korea; the treatment of Cuba; the meddling in the affairs of other nations; the fairly indiscriminate supplying of arms to anybody who could pay for them; and finally, the abortive, badly-burned-fingers mess of Viet Nam.

At home right now, the States has a rather panicky president, growing inflation and unemployment, belligerent blacks and hardline unions, and a recession on the horizon. Abroad, "it has lost a great deal of credibility, and seems to be pushed around by anybody who has plenty of oil.

American imperialism is coming home to roost, and there are a lot of vultures among the roosters. Cuba is an out-spoken enemy. Mexico, sitting on a huge oil deposit, is cool, considering past grievances. The Philippines are gone. Japan and Germany, the losers in W.W. II, are the winners in the economic war. The U.S. dollar is no longer the international monetary standard. The Panama Canal is going.

But let's not forget the tremendous power that lies in that great, half-stunned nation of the western hemisphere, the U.S. of America. The giant may be slumbering, having nightmares, twitching in his sleep. But he's far from dead.

There is still a great, latent vitality in the States. With strong leadership, and a renewed sense of purpose, the Yanks can make a tremendous comeback, as they have proven more than once.

For our sakes, they'd better. Despite what our ubiquitous nationalists blather, Canada is riding on the coat-tails of the U.S., and you'd better believe it. If they suffer, we suffer. If they bleed, we hemorrhage.

Let's not give it away: our gas and oil and water and hydro power. Let's trade shrewdly, like a Yankee. But let's not get mean and stingy and narrow, either. Let's be neighbourly.

For the simple fact is, that if Canadians get all upright and righteous and miserly, refusing to share, they could walk in and take over this country and help themselves. And nobody, nobody in the world, would lift a finger to stop them.

End of sermon.

Damages heavy in area crashes

A 22-year old Wilberforce man was charged with failing to report an accident forthwith after his vehicle entered a ditch on Otter Lake Road and rolled over early Saturday morning.

Orval Foster was charged when the northbound car he was driving entered an east ditch and rolled over.

Damage to his car is estimated at $2000.

A Minden woman escaped with minimal injuries after the car she was driving entered a ditch on highway 35, a week ago Tuesday.

Judith Horsley, 20, was southbound on the highway south of Minden, when she lost control of her vehicle and it entered the east ditch, rolling over.

The car sustained $3500 damage.

A car driven by a Richmond Hill man struck a mailbox after he lost control on the Hawk Lake Road Sunday afternoon.

Wayne Donnelly, 26, was eastbound when the vehicle he was driving entered the south ditch, striking a mailbox and then a tree.

from Campbellford, and was responsible for the organization of this tournament. She also presented the trophy. Representing the zone were Comrade Phyllis Montemiglio of Lindsay, Zone Commander and Comrade Nora Tomlinson, Zone Sports Officer. Comrade Irene Higgins, President of the Haliburton Ladies Auxiliary, welcomed all those present and made mention of the fact that Saturday was the first time this tournament has been held in the zone.

Special thanks were extended to all those who worked many hours helping prepare for the tournament and also to those who kept everything running smoothly during the day and evening, especially those Comrades from the Haliburton men's branch who gave up their free time to lend a helping hand.

The out-of-town guests were greatly impressed with the "look" of the Legion Hall and with the facilities it has to offer. Many of them coming from bigger centres said their halls couldn't begin to compare with the Haliburton hall. Many expressions of approval and delight were given about the Haliburton Highlands as well, with many of the visitors promising to return to the beauty of this part of the province.

The Haliburton Auxiliary say they wish to extend a very special thank-you to the local merchants, restaurant operators and especially to those motel and lodge owners who so kindly accommodated the guests, and made their visit most enjoyable.

United Church Women from county meet for annual area rally

by Loretta Zufelt

United Church Women from Carnarvon, Gooderham, Haliburton, Ingoldsby, Lochlin, Maple Lake, Minden, Tory Hill and Wilberforce met at Gooderham United Church on September 12 for their annual area rally under the theme, "The Fruit of the Spirit of Love".

Mrs. Pat Burke, Ingoldsby, opened the meeting with the reading of I Corinthians 13 from The Living Bible and the singing of the hymn, "O Love That Wilt Not Let Me Go".

All present were warmly welcomed by Maurice Bradley, Minister of the Pastoral Charge. The morning devotions were in charge of Minden U.C.W. and carried out the theme for the day. By thoughts expressed the groups were reminded that "Love takes priority in the gifts of the Holy Spirit" and that "Other gifts are only possible because of love, abiding, God-centered love".

The offering was received and dedicated by Maple Lake U.C.W. Mrs. Mabel Russell, on behalf of Carnarvon U.C.W., extended an invitation for the 1980 rally.

Mrs. Hill, secretary, called on all groups for a report of the year's work and again the theme of "Love" came through as we heard of shut-ins, seniors and bereaved ministered to; children sponsored; bales for Fred Victor Mission and Angola; concern for the physically handicapped; fellowship luncheons for visitors and newcomers; gifts of money to various organizations and assistance in all areas of local church work.

The guest speaker for this event was the Rev. Henry Getz, area minister of the Northern Pastoral Charge, who was introduced by Mrs. Pat Thorne. Mr. Getz, in his thoughts on the theme, said "Love is a life controlled by the Holy Spirit". The evidence of God's spirit in life is love. Mr. Getz used the apple tree as an illustration; it bears fruit, apples, but they are used for eating raw, cooking, baking, in pies, pudding, streudel, etc. The fruit is love! All other attributes come out of the fruit. Love is not something we work up but something we receive from the Holy Spirit.

Mrs. Marion Wellman introduced the literature display which was widely visited during the noon break and at the close of the rally.

The ladies of Gooderham served a delicious lunch and following it Mrs. Doey of Carnarvon led in an enjoyable hymn sing. Haliburton led the group in prayer and this led into a beautiful solo, "Jesus Loves Me" by Ann Stephens of Tory Hill, accompanied by Joan Wilson.

Presbyterial officers were introduced and brought greetings. President Margaret Stewart, thanked all groups for their support of the bursary fund and asked that the groups "look inward at programs to see if they are suited to the needs of the groups and then look outward in service to the community and the world. A few areas brought to their attention were: the need for used stamps to help a leprosy mission; used eye glasses and hearing aids; also the problems of drug abuse. Lochlin U.C.W. conducted the In Memoriam service using Psalm 100 and a reading, "Parable of a Mother".

Those gone on before are a living presence. A very successful rally closed with the courtesy report, the singing of a hymn, and the benediction.

Recycle it!

by Jane Selbie

Here's a few shoe suggestions that might make life easier for your little ones.

For children who are not ready to tie their shoes but could manage to put them on themselves, replace laces with strip elastic. Tie in a double knot with the surplus for a bow. The little one can stretch them open himself or mom can quickly put them on without the tedious procedure of retieing laces and fighting over knots.

Lightweight shoe laces that are forever breaking can be replaced by a skate lace cut in half. Knot both ends to prevent them from fraying or unthreading through the eyelet. Mukluk thongs cut in thirds are practically indestructible too. One pair makes six laces!

When visiting a stoney beach, save the children's feet by letting them wear scruffy sneakers for wading. The rubber gives their feet buoyancy so don't worry about any problems of extra weight.

Mrs. Mary E. Robertson of Haliburton sends two ideas useful in cutting down pollution and saving energy.

Firstly, never throw away paper napkins. Put them in a box or drawer and use them to wipe off plates, mop up spills or clean out pots and pans. Secondly, an idea for people living alone. Using the quart milk bags, put a few spoonfuls of water in the bags, then add vegetables and place in a cooking pot of water. Fold the bag over the edge of the pot and cook with the lid on. One burner will cook three or four vegetables, reheat meat or leftovers.

Now is the time to use the idea of Mrs. Jack White of RR #5, Lindsay. Gather pine cones that have fallen and are dry. Put them in a fancy wicker basket and set them on the mantel. You'll always have kindling handy.

adoption of an anti-shoplifting campaign. "Operation S.H.O.P." - shoplifting hurts Ontario's people - will be offered to chambers and boards throughout the province for use at the local community level in March, 1980.

In approving the program at their annual meeting in Orillia this month, the O.C.C.E. executive outlined a number of goals they hope to achieve: to develop community awareness, responsibility and involvement in a unified approach to combat the shoplifting problem; to control and reduce the shoplifting problem; to inform and motivate retail employers and employees to accept more responsibility in reducing the shoplifting problem through in-store training and involvement; to reduce the opportunity to shoplift (to commit theft) through anti-shoplifting techniques, such as preventive measures and design; to educate the individual, the community and society as a whole, by means of an intensive media campaign and through the educational system, as to the consequences of shoplifting; to promote a larger degree of involvement and responsibility from the justice system in controlling and deterring the shoplifting problem; to evaluate the campaign in terms of community support groups. The project is geared towards prevention, rather than prosecution, and is "total community" oriented, drawing on many representative groups to implement "Operation S.H.O.P."

trading nations, Ontario will be looking for the federal government to become much more aggressive and active in providing adjustment assistance and safeguards to the manufacturing sector.

The effective exclusion of textiles, clothing and footwear by most industrialized countries from all but minimal tariff cuts could be of particular interest to eastern Ontario. Northern Ontario, with 25 percent of Canada's employment in the pulp and paper industry, would benefit from greatly improved market access for pulp and paper products in the United States, European Economic Community and Japan. A number of key U.S. concessions on chemical products would benefit producers in southwestern Ontario, as would improved tariff treatment in the U.S. and/or the EEC of agricultural products such as corn, white beans, tobacco, and processed foodstuffs such as biscuits, cakes, confectionery, canned corn and processed meats.

It is estimated that by 1988, Canadian manufacturers would have duty-free access into the American market for about 80 percent of all exports to that country, compared to 66 percent at present. On the minus side, concessions by the EEC and Japan were less than hoped for, but some market opportunities for Ontario have opened up in aerospace, avionics and forest products sectors. It is regretted that tariff cuts in petrochemicals and iron and steel were smaller because of existing global overcapacity. It is also pointed out that certain sectors of the Ontario economy would be exposed to greater competitive pressures from abroad. These would likely include certain types of furniture manufacturers, plastic fabricators, toy and game producers, glass products, and major and small appliance manufacturers.

I hope to further discuss this in future news columns.

MNR approves park launching site grant

The Ministry of Natural Resources has approved a $10,000 grant to be used for the construction of a canoe launching site and further development of the Gull River park in Minden.

A master plan for development of the area was completed last year by Totten, Sims and Hubicki, architect planners.

Some of the $10,000 MNR grant will be used to finance further improvements to the main entrance, the parking area, and washrooms. Signs will also be erected to direct visitors to activity areas within the park.
